Ten New Commandments
A New Gangster Killing
Texts for Two Treaties
To Grow Less Wheat

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

HODGE, Cal., April 2.

WILL HAYS, who knows what 99 per cent of Americans want, promulgates a new picture morals code, to meet the "talkie" emergency. The audiences of 22,000 theaters in this country, and 250,000,000 human beings that see American picpures weekly, throughout the world, are not to be corrupted.

NO sympathy with crime, no presentation of crime heroes. Law must not be ridiculed. This includes prohibition. Marriage and the home must be held sacred. Adultery never justified.

No white slavery, no sex abominations.

No ridiculing of religion or clergymen.

No pointed profanity.

No obscenity, no dances including movements that could reasonably be called obscene.

Cruelty to children and others, third degree torture, electrocutions, hangings, must be treated carefully.

MOSES, coming down from the mountain could hardly do better. And the new code of morals is accepted voluntarily by the motion picture industry. The motion picture magnates were wise, when they selected Will Hays to keep them on the straight moral path.

WITHOUT interfering with Will Hays' moral code, it is permissible to tell of a new gangster - inside - killing plan, here. Novelty has its charm. Charles M. Curry and Harry Morhan decided that the time had come to kill and rob their partner, Angelo Freni.

THEY had Freni carry a shovel to an automobile, telling him he was to dig up some buried "soup," a high explosive to be used on a bank vault. In the automobile, they beat him to death, as they supposed, then buried him, using the shovel to dig his grave.

FRENI, who had only pretended to be dead, and was put in a shallow hole, dug his way out, and the would-be killers confess. Freni, in the hospital, is proud to be the only man ever dead, buried and self-exhumed. His mates confess, and he must go to jail with them later. They told all about his crimes. That "honor among thieves" seems to lack essential qualities.

IT is now believed that the London Naval Conference will produce a three-power treaty to include Britain, Japan and the United States. If it were made to read "you mind your business, while we mind ours," it would not be a bad treaty.

MEANWHILE we should have here a three-power treaty, made up of the War Department, Navy Department, and makers of flying machines and submarines. That treaty should read, "We agree to keep this nation well prepared, in the air and under water, as to guarantee good behavior by all other powers in matters concerning us."

THE government asks farmers, for their own price protection, to reduce by two million acres, spring wheat planting in Minnesota and the Dakotas. Substitution of barley, rye, oats, alfalfa, sweet clover is suggested. That might help, if other states reduced acreage. But it is as difficult for farmers, as for others, to change their habits.

THE price of wheat for the world is made abroad, where our surplus is bought. That will continue, in spite of well meant government efforts to create an artificial price. If our farmers plant less wheat other countries will plant more. Relieving the farmer is no simple problem. It could be done by organizing wheat production as we have organized automobile production, making it hopeless for foreigners to compete.

NEWS from Moscow causes anxiety among Jewish citizens, seeming to contradict a statement by Russia's chief rabbi, praising the Soviet attitude toward Jews. For belonging to various Jewish organizations, ninety Jews have been sent to Siberia, others compelled to sign a promise never to join such organizations.

WE wonder that Russia is foolish enough thus to imitate the Czars, and forbid freedom of thought and speech. However, if Russian Bolsheviks came here, and said publicly what they really think, we should club them first, then put them in jail. Everywhere, free speech is what you believe, sedition is what the other man believes.

LOS ANGELES is made cheerful by the establishment of 27 new manufacturing plants since the beginning of 1930. This creates new jobs. New power from Boulder Dam, if sold at fair prices to those that use it, will create new jobs in several states. Nevada is told she can have one-third of the power developed, if she will contract for it, within six months and agree to use all of it within her own borders.

WHY not allot the power to states that have fair claims on it and sell the power at reasonably profitable rates to be

HEAD FOUND IN BARREL MURDER

Picked Up 100 Yards From Place Body Was Hidden; Identification Mystery

The head which was severed from the body of a man, who was slain and hidden in a barrel in the woods along Grine Run, Penn Township, was found today.

It was on the ground 100 yards from where a pedestrian came upon the barrel yesterday.

Identification of the body, still lacking, was hoped for with the discovery of the head by County Detectives Samuel Whisner and Thomas Calig.

The head revealed the mordered man as about 30 years old, with dark hair of a reddish tone, a ruddy complexion, fine even teeth, and brown eyes.

SEE MONASTERO REPRISAL

Recovery of the head so near the barrel eliminates the theory that the killers, by decapitation, hoped to make identification more difficult.

At the same time it established the murder as one of the most brutal in the history of Allegheny County. The victim's face was bruised severely.

The discovery did not alter the detectives' theory that the murder may have been done in reprisal for the recent slaying of Sam Monastero.

Sleuths pointed out that all clues they have—three potato sacks, a walnut sack and a cabbage barrel—indicated a connection with the produce business, which was Monastero's business.

BODY BADLY MUTILATED

Headless and naked, the body was mutilated, as if the killers had tried to erase tattoo marks which would serve as a clue to identification.

The sacks and two sections of a newspaper were stuffed in the Victim Asks Treasury Head And Brother Pay Damages For Injuries in Building

How a surgeon contributed his own blood in a transfusion to save a patient near death was revealed in Common Pleas Court when the damage suit of Miss Mary Hahn, 23, of 325 Concord street, against Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and his brother, R. B. Mellon, came up before Judge Elder W. Marshall.

Miss Hahn was cut severely March 16, 1928, when a workman employed on the construction of the Pittsburgher Hotel dropped a hammer and shattered a window across the street.

The flying glass struck Miss Hahn, who was rushed to Mercy Hospital. Her brother, Frank Hahn, consented to a transfusion, but it was insufficient to rally the patient. Dr. J. W. Fredette admitted reluctantly on the stand that he then made a transfusion from his own veins to save her life.

Miss Hahn is suing the Mellons as owner of the Pittsburgher Hotel.

FALL ILL, U. S. SPEEDS PLEA

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(INS.)—Because of the present illness of Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior in the Harding administration, the government's special oil prosecutors today petitioned the Supreme Court to accept and issue a decision on Fall's appeal against a sentence of one year in jail and a fine of $100,000 for accepting a like sum as a bribe.

Edward L. Doheny, California oil operator, was acquitted by a jury here last month of giving money to Fall as a bribe.

Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, the prosecutors, declared Fall's serious illness prompted them to ask the high court to receive the case from the United States Court of Appeals, so that, should the conviction be set aside, Fall might be vindicated while alive, or if it was sustained, he might be punished.

DRYS END CASE, ESCAPE QUIZ

By WILLIAM S. NEAL,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The drys closed their case before the House Judiciary Committee today by dumping thousands of words of written testimony into the record, extolling the merits of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead law—and, to the chagrin of the liberals on the committee, escaped without any cross-examination on their figures of arguments.

An arbitrary and unexpected ruling by Chairman George S. Graham closed the lengthy prohibition hearing for the time being. He announced that because of the exigencies of the tariff situation, the committee would close the hearings by permitting officials of the Anti-Saloon League, the International Reform Federation and kindred organizations to file voluminous statements.

CIVILIAN ARMY BEGINS CENSUS IN COUNTY

Many Women Are Enrolled Among Enumerators; Drive To Continue Thirty Days

Participating in the nation-wide enumeration in the fifteenth decennial census, more than 1,000 men and women today began taking the population count in Allegheny County. The work will be continued until April 30.

The army of enumerators was mobilized by Supervisors J. E. Routley, A. D. Levy and Dr. George Metzger, ready at 9 a. m. to make the rounds of every household, hotel and institution in the county. About half of the enumerators are engaged within the corporate limits of Pittsburgh.

FOLLOW SET ROUTE

Governed by uniform rules which are obeyed by more than 100,000 employes of the Census Bureau, the city workers began at the northwest corner of each block of houses and continued their way to the right around the block. The first block finished, the enumerator was prepared to start at the northwest corner of the second block, and so continue for a day of eight hours or longer. Where families were away from home, the enumerator was obliged to make note of their absence and call again.

In the cities reports to the census-takers will be made largely by women. The enumerators here today found few men at home and wives, daughters or mothers answered questions in the absence of the head of the family.

ENUMERATORS WELCOME

In the residential sections of the city and the rural communities the enumerators were well received and their tasks were lightened by the prompt answers of the people. In districts populated largely by foreign-born non-English speaking residents some delay was anticipated until all the people are informed as to the purpose of the census. Assistance was given in this work by teachers in the public and parochial schools who explain to the children the importance of co-operation in making the enumeration.

Al Smith's Wife Hurt In Fall

NEW YORK, April 2.—(INS.)—Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, wife of the former governor and presidential candidate, was slightly injured today in a fall down a flight of stairs at the Smith Fifth avenue residence.

Mrs. Smith's only injury was a bruised forehead, according to word received by Smith at his office.

He started for home at once, however, abruptly leaving the conference of steel workers and contractors which he had called in an effort to avert a possible halt in the erection of the steel frame of the new Empire State building.

Hawks Alone in Air On 25-Minute Glide

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., April 2.—(AP.)—Capt. Frank Hawks, en route from San Diego, Cal., to New York, in a glider towed by an airplane, landed at Staley Field, here, at 9:10 a. m., today, after a flight from Sweetwater, Tex. He soared over the field for 25 minutes after cutting loose from the tow plane.

Hawks left at 11 a. m., planning to make a refueling stop at Oklahoma City and then fly to Tulsa, Okla., to spend the night.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 2.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Will Rogers will fly from Los Angeles to Mexico City to join 25 journalism students of Oklahoma City University as guests of President Ortiz Rubio, of Mexico, at a reception April 25, Lindbergh advised the Oklahoma State Chamber of Commerce today.

APPLICATION OF COMPANY HELD UP

Officials Meet Mayor to Press Plea to Place More Cabs on Streets

There will be no extension of taxi service in the city for three or four days, Mayor Charles H. Kline announced today following a conference at which officials of the Parmelee Transportation Company had asked sanction of the Mayor in extending cab service from the downtown district to other sections of the city.

The company officials asked additional police protection in extending the service, it was said.

"THREE OR FOUR DAYS"

"I told them I needed three or four days to think over the matter," Mayor Kline reported.

Joseph DeRocco, 26, of 1614 Edna street, arrested yesterday when a cab was attacked at Grant street and Fifth avenue, was fined $25 in Central Police Court today.

HELD IN $1,000 BAIL

He was rearrested before he left the court on three informations made by A. W. Brown, of North Duane avenue, Ingram, driver of the cab attacked. DeRocco was held under $1,000 bail for a hearing before Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley, tomorrow night.

Also arrested in the courtroom was Chester Waddell, vice chairman of the striking cab drivers' committee, a spectator at DeRocco's hearing. He was charged with assault and battery and inciting to riot in an information signed by Morris Fromme, chairman of the drivers' back-to-work committee. Waddell also will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Morgan tomorrow night.

DRIVER, DEPUTY BEATEN

Special Deputy Sheriff A. L. Cummins, 34, of Braddock, and Harry Miller, 26, a taxicab driver, engaged in a slugging match with strike sympathizers in a Liberty avenue hallway. They had left their cab and followed several men who made slurring remarks, it was said at the sheriff's office. A scuffle ensued in the hallway. Cummins was cut slightly on one cheek.

Gassed Duchess in Quarrel Over Radio Selections

LONDON, April 2.—(INS.)—The finding of the Duchess of Leinster lying unconscious in the gas-filled kitchenette of a cramped flat they had rented together in Brixton, was preceded by a bitter quarrel over their new radio set, Stanley Williams, young unemployed chef, told investigators today.

"She had tuned in a London station and it was rotten," said Williams. "I wanted to get Paris.

"That started the fuss, lasting several hours. Finally I took my things and left, telling her I was going home.

"She was terribly angry when I went out. Later I became worried and asked the police to go with me to the flat."

The duchess was reported to be recovering from the effects of the gas fumes this morning.

Before her marriage to the duke, then Lord Edward Fitzgerald, in 1913, she was May Etheridge, darling of the London footlights.

BIG GUNS TRAINED HERE IN G. O. P. FACTIONAL WARFARE

ARMSTRONG GETS DRIVE STARTED

Davis-Brown Leader Back, With Grundy and Pinchot Due in City Next Week

"Big guns" in Pennsylvania's factional warfare were trained on Pittsburgh today, ready to open fire in the Republican primary battle to capture the state's "western front."

Auditor General C. A. Waters, Philadelphia manager of the Grundy campaign, was in Pittsburgh today arranging a battle line. He conferred with Grundy supporters here.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, directing the campaign in this territory for the Davis-Brown forces, was expected to return today from the Philadelphia war council of Vare leaders and take active charge of the headquarters in the William Penn Hotel.

GRUNDY, PINCHOT COMING

United States Senator Joseph R. Grundy, seeking re-election in the contest with Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, was expected to come early next week upon the return of former State Chairman W. L. Mellon from Florida, according to State Senator James J. Coyne, his leading supporter here.

Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, opposing Francis Shunk Brown for the gubernatorial nomination, will return April 9, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern announced.

In Philadelphia, today, Pinchot announced the appointment of Judge Arthur C. Dale, of Bellefonte, and Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, of Pittsburgh, as chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of the Pinchot state committee. He also called upon Brown to announce "what he stands for; what his plans are; what his issues are; and whether he is wet or dry."

ATTERBURY ATTACKED

Pinchot issued another statement last night attacking the State Public Service Commission, which he declared was the "catspaw of the corporations."

He also vigorously attacked W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, for his alleged control of the commission and asserted Atterbury was instrumental in picking the Philadelphia organization candidate for Supreme Court.

County Commissioner Armstrong conferred last night with candidates and members of William S. Vare's "war board" who are supporting the Davis-Brown ticket.

MACKRELL AT PARLEY

Other Pittsburghers at the Philadelphia conference were Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, a pioneer in the movement that resulted in the Davis-Brown combination; Judge James B. Drew, slated for one of the two nominations for judge of Superior Court, and John M. Morin, who is seeking to regain the seat he lost two years ago to Congressman P. J. Sullivan.

Reports from the Philadelphia parley declared that Vare and Western Pennsylvania leaders insisted upon Lieut. Gov. Arthur H. James as a candidate for Republican nomination for State Supreme Court, as opposed to Judge George W. Maxey, of Scranton.

James announced, after the parley, that his status as a candidate was unchanged, and that he would stay in the race if assured the Vare support.

VARE SILENT

Vare and Sheriff Cunningham of Philadelphia, it was said, strongly supported the contention of the Western Pennsylvania delegation that James should be the candidate. The Philadelphia organization was supposed to have slated Maxey.

A meeting to discuss platforms and campaign plans was held last night in Francis Shunk Brown's office. Those attending included Secretary Davis, Mr. Brown, Brig. Gen. Edward C. Shannon, of Columbia, candidate for lieutenant governor, and Philip H. Dewey, Tioga County, candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs. Candidates for judicial nominations did not participate.

Grundy was expected to return to Philadelphia today or tomorrow from Washington and resume his active fight. Headquarters for the Grundy campaign committee were fitted up on the ground floor of the Finance Building in South Penn Square.

adopt Donnie. They have a son, Joe, the same age as Donnie, and the two will be reared as brothers.

FATHER'S CLAIM DROPPED

Homer Schroeder, coffee salesman, of Amarillo, Tex., had written his brother, Henry, of Wheeling Island, several days ago that he would give Donnie a good home, but today no claim for the lad was presented in the father's behalf.

Donnie appeared delighted at living with his aunt. The Schoenians own their own home and are in comfortable circumstances, the court was informed.

Donnie is entitled to a $3 a day fee as a material witness from January 1 to yesterday, when he was returned here, Jack Dunlap, Lawrence County (Pa.) probation officer, told Mrs. Schoenian. She will seek to obtain the $275.

FAREWELL TO MOTHER

"Goodby, Donnie; kiss grandpap for me," were the parting words of Irene to her boy yesterday in the jail at New Castle, Pa.

Donnie also bade farewell to W. Glenn Dague, sweetheart of the blonde waitress, likewise condemned to die for the same crime.

The door of Dague's cell was opened. He reached out to lift the lad into his arms. Donnie squealed his displeasure. He didn't like being lifted into the dark cage.

Dague was permitted to enter the corridor, where he kissed the lad who had accompanied him and Irene on their holdup tours.

'Head of Family' Hoover Informs Census Taker

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(INS.)—President Hoover had his census taken today. It was done in the south grounds of the White House in front of the movie cameras as the executive's contribution to the drive to impress upon the nation the importance of the decennial enumeration.

J. Sterling Moran, census supervisor for the district, asked the questions and filled out the blank, while Secretary of Commerce Lamont supervised the job.

Insofar as gathering any new information about the President was concerned, the ceremony was a flop. The obvious questions were not asked.

Mr. Hoover did, however, make it official that he was "head of the family."

GOEBEL TO SEEK FLIGHT RECORD

WICHITA, Kans., April 2.—(AP.)—A proposed attempt to recapture the West to East non-stop transcontinental airplane record held by Capt. Frank Hawks, has been announced by Col. Arthur Goebel, Detroit flight winner.

In an announcement made here late yesterday Col. Goebel said the attempt would be made in May or June with a new Lockheed low-wing monoplane powered with a 400 horsepower Wasp motor.

In 1928 Goebel spanned the continent in 18 hours and 58 minutes. Hawks subsequently lowered the time to 17:38:59 and also holds the East-West record of 19:10:26.

SAYS MAE WEST WAS 'FRAMED'

NEW YORK, April 2.—(INS.)—Charging that the police were trying to "frame" Mae West, Nathan Burkan, counsel for the blonde actress and 57 other defendants on trial for staging an alleged indecent performance, today pleaded with the jury to bring in a verdict of acquittal.

In Burkan's summation he declared the trial was a lesson in "nightstick censorship and perjured police testimony."

"These police went to the performance of 'Pleasure Man' with instructions 'to get Mae West,'" said Burkan.

"The testimony of the five policemen regarding the lines in the play is all a context of lies, done with malice aforethought."

LILA CONSIDERS PLEA OF GUILT

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 2.—(INS.)—For hours today Lila Jimerson discussed whether she would plead guilty of second degree murder when her trial for the murder of Mrs. Clothilde Marchand is resumed.

The Indian artist's model talked with her attorneys as she lay in bed in the hospital where she was taken yesterday, after suffering a hemorrhage in the courtroom. Late this afternoon no decision had been announced.

fixed by the states, on a basis to encourage industry and divide the proceeds among the states, each allowed to use or sell its share of power. It is unfair to suggest that Nevada, Arizona, Colorado or California be forced to use great power supplies within six months, or forfeit rights of inestimable value.

EVENTUALLY the airplane industry, which demands an all-year mild climate, for experiment and demonstration will use a great part of the power. It is good news that this country builds, now, more planes than all the rest of the world combined. We should rule aviation industries in future, as we rule automobile and motion picture industries now.

DAIL REJECTS DE VALERA, 93 TO 74

Defeat of Irish Leader in Presidency Test Follows Break in Party Ranks

DUBLIN, April 2.—(AP.)—A motion in the Dail Eireann to elect Eamon De Valera, Fianna Fail leader, president of the Free State Council, was defeated late today, 93 to 74.

He had been proposed as successor to William T. Cosgrave by Lean O'Kelly, acting leader of the Fianna Fail party. De Valera is absent in the United States.

DE VALERA AIDE BOLTS

Sean Timass strongly urged the Fianna Fail and entire opposition to support Thomas J. O'Connell, Labor party candidate for the office, as an alternative to either De Valera or Cosgrave, who was generally expected to be re-elected.

He based his attitude on a statement by William Davin, of the Laborites, that they would not in "any circumstances support De Valera, because they accepted the Irish treaty with England."

DE VALERA PRAISED, FLAYED

In his speech proposing De Valera, O'Kelly declared his chief was the only man in public life today who had the ability and personality to enable the Irish people to face the future with confidence.

Desmond Fitzgerald, minister of defense in the Cosgrave cabinet, replied that no one knew what De Valera's policy was at present, and remarked that to ask the House to elect such a man was to disgrace the Irish nation.

COURT APPEAL ASKS MERGER FIGURES

Injunction Filed by Elyria Stockholder Calls For Bethlehem Records

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 2.—(AP.)—Arthur B. Taylor, of Elyria, O., a stockholder in the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, today filed a petition for a mandatory injunction to require company officials to give him figures which would establish the value of the common stock of Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Under the terms of a proposed merger of Sheet and Tube and Bethlehem stockholders of the former company would be given one and a third shares of Bethlehem common for each share of Sheet and Tube common held.

Opponents of the merger have asserted the terms are not fair to Sheet and Tube stockholders, and have sought to examine the figures on which the terms were based.

Taylor, who owns 360 shares of Sheet and Tube common, said in his petition that the Sheet and Tube Company has the information he requests, and that the company has refused to give it to him.

HEARING NOT SET

No date has been set for hearing on the petition.

The proxy committee opposing the merger asked on March 22 that they be permitted to appear in person before the Sheet and Tube directors and request access to the information on which the deal was based. The directors met March 25, but no action was taken on this demand.

Previously, J. A. Campbell, Sheet and Tube chairman, had said that independent and disinterested accountants would be permitted access to such information as was considered relevant by Bethlehem's auditors, but that Bethlehem would not permit an unrestricted examination of its books.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and the Bethlehem companies today presented to Sheet and Tube stockholders a report by three accounting firms holding that the terms of the proposed merger of the two firms are "fair and favorable" to Sheet and Tube stockholders.

TERMS HELD FAIR

The statement said that three accountants based their comparison on four factors—relative fixed charges, working capital, book value and earnings. In each category they reported that the terms of one and one third shares of Bethlehem for one share of Sheet and Tube are favorable to Sheet and Tube stockholders.

Federal Investigation Of Steel Merger Asked

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The proposed merger of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company is the first step in the formation of a gigantic steel trust and is being negotiated "with the knowledge and approval, if not the direct interest, of the United States Steel Corporation."

This charge was made upon the floor of the House by Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Rep.), of New York, in presenting a resolution calling upon Attorney General William D. Mitchell to act to prevent the merger.

LaGuardia's attack on Mitchell was made on the floor of the House yesterday. He followed it with the introduction of the resolution demanding the investigation into the proposed steel merger.

Farm Machinery Exports Set Record

WASHINGTON, April 2.—United States exports of agricultural implements during February broke all records, amounting to $21,292,477, a gain of 100 per cent over the February, 1929, figure of $10,530,750, the Department of Commerce announced today. This was taken as an indication that 1930 will show a substantial gain over the previous year's business, it was said.

For the two months ended February exports were $35,000,000 against $23,000,000 during the period of 1929.

The department believes that about 50 per cent of the total shipments went to Russia.

KILLINGS LAID TO CHURCH BAN

LONDON, April 2.—(INS.)—Scores of persons in Soviet Russia have been sentenced to death and many others to long prison terms because of their refusel to renounce their religious faith, the Most Rev. Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, archbishop of Canterbury, chief primate of the Anglican Church, told of House of Lords today.

"Out of 20 recent cases in Soviet Russia involving religious persecution," the archbishop declared, "no less than 71 persons were sentenced to be shot and 112 to serve 12 years' imprisonment."

The archbishop's statement was made in the course of an impassioned address which was heard by a packed gallery. He was the first speaker in the debate in the upper house of Parliament concerning charges the Soviet Government is engaged in a systematic attempt to eradicate all religion from Russia.

CLUES NOT DEFINITE

Monastero was found strangled in his auto in Jack's Run two weeks ago. Six months ago his brother, Steve Monastero, was slain by gangsters.

The sacks provided the detectives with none-too-substantial clues. On the sacks are the trademarks of the brands of potatoes, which might serve as leads.

Detectives today centered their investigation in the produce yards, believing the murder might have been committed in that district.

Fingerprints of the victim were sent to the Department of Justice at Washington with a request that they be compared with those of missing sailors and ex-sailors. The detectives feel that tattoo marks being synonymous with sailors, the victim may have been in the government service.

Morgue attaches said the latest victim was about 5 feet 5 inches tall, and weighed about 130 pounds.

U. S. Delegates Approve Figures Offered Parley; Plenary Session Put Off

By HARRY R. FLORY.
International News Service.

LONDON, April 2.—Japan's reply to the Reed-Matsudaira naval compromise proposals was handed formally to Secretary of State Stimson this afternoon at St. James' Palace, and immediately was pronounced "satisfactory" by the American delegates.

"Some minor details must be discussed and adjustments made, but no changes in the figures will be required," a spokesman for the American delegation said.

The Japanese reply was handed to Secretary Stimson at a meeting of the heads of the Japanese, British and American delegations. The meeting lasted for more than an hour.

It was announced this afternoon that the plenary session of the conference scheduled to be held in St. James' Palace Friday had been postponed indefinitely.

Decision to hold a plenary session was reached at a time when the conference seemed completely on the rocks. Efforts were to be made to save the parley from what at the time appeared to be certain failure.

Rare Butterflies Named After Persons Here

Thomas Liggett, well-known real estate man, has had a rare butterfly named for him, it was learned today. The insect was found by Andrey Avinoff, director of Carnegie Museum, in Cook Forest, in the preservation of which as a public park Mr. Liggett played a prominent part.

In announcing the dedication of the new sub-species, Mr. Avinoff said: "Melitaea Harrisi Liggetti, the recently discovered inhabitant of the splendid primeval forest, which Mr. Liggett has helped to rescue from the axeman, preserving it for all time as a recreation ground for the people of Pennsylvania, by its name will perpetuate the memory of his self-sacrificing exertions."

Dr. Avinoff has himself been similarly honored. Reporting the discovery of a new butterfly from the Yukon Valley, Dr. William Jacob Holland, director emeritus of the museum said: "I name the species 'Thanaos avinoffi' in honor of Dr. Avinoff, whose grandfather, Admiral Avinoff, explored the coast of Alaska for the Russian government, and whose name is borne by one of its capes."

Dr. Holland has named another new butterfly "gunderiae," in honor of a Mrs. Gunder, explaining that some years ago Mr. Gunder named a butterfly "hollandae" in honor of Mrs. Holland and he desires to return the compliment.

At 81 Dr. Holland is re-writing his "Butterfly Book," which for 32 years has been the standard authority on lepidoptera. The new edition will have descriptions of "liggetti," "avinoffi," "gunderiae," "hollandae" and many others.

State Department Informed Of Escape From Raiders; Trio Held for Ransom

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP.)—The National Catholic Welfare Conference has informed the State Department that members of the American Catholic Mission at Kanchow, China, who last week were reported in danger from Chinese brigands, are safe.

The State Department today made public two telegrams from the missionaries. The first was received March 29 from Bishop O'Shea, head of the Kanchow mission.

SISTERS SAFE

It said:

"Red armies have withdrawn to Father McLaughlin's place (known as Sinfeng). Sisters arrived at Kanchow all well. Fathers Erbe and Curtis whereabouts not known. Very probably in vicinity of Father Young's."

Another telegram from Sister Pauline Strabel, of Saginaw, Mich., sister superior at Kanchow, told in more detail of the escape.

She said:

"Eight Sisters of Charity at Kanchow absolutely safe. Sister Groell and others who were at Tawoli, 30 miles from Kanchow, have escaped to Kanchow. Their community house at Tawoli was robbed and partly damaged. Fathers Erbe and Curtis, who were at Tawoli, were robbed. Both of these priests and all the sisters are now safe at Kanchow."

U.S. AGENTS AID MILES INQUIRY

Doctors Also Give Data on Economist Whose Widow Wed Rogers, Oil Man

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—After a lapse of nearly two years, a secret and mysterious inquiry into the death of Basil Miles, diplomat and economist of international prominence, was under way today.

Miles died at Emergency Hospital, June 14, 1928, after an operation. The death certificate gave pulmonary embolism, a blood clot on the lung, as the cause.

Miles' widow, the former Mrs. Margaret Peabody Savell, has since married Col. Henry H. Rogers, wealthy oil man. Col. Rogers is the father of the former Millicent Rogers, whose marriage and subsequent separation and divorce from Count Salm Von Hoogstraeten drew the attention of society in America and abroad.

DOCTORS AID INQUIRY

Neil Burkinshaw, assistant district attorney, who achieved note for his participation in the Harding oil scandals prosecutions, has been working quietly for several weeks, it was reported in reliable quarters. Burkinshaw is said to have information furnished by private individuals and Department of Justice agents. He refused even to admit the investigation, however.

It became known despite his reticence that yesterday he was in conference with the local physician, who was an interne at Emergency when Miles died, at a time when he was reported to be well on the road to recovery. Another physician also is said to have given Burkinshaw information throwing some light on the mystery.

Miles' widow was the daughter of the late Alexander von Braun, of Budapest, Hungary. Her first husband was Lester Norton Savell, whom she divorced in 1924.

Mrs. Rogers Sued by Man Who Investigated Career

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP.)—The present Mrs. H. H. Rogers, The present Mrs. H. H. Rogers was one of three persons sued for $750,000 damages in State Supreme Court here last year.

The action was brought by Edward E. Kern, a former secretary of Col. Rogers. Kern charged that Mrs. Rogers and Andrew and Marie Zichy maliciously caused his discharge. He alleged that one of their reasons was an investigation he had made at Roger's request into Mrs. Rogers' life before her marriage to the oil man last year.

One of the questions contained in Kern's petition, which he said he would ask in open court, was whether the present Mrs. Rogers had told the colonel that she was an illegitimate daughter of the late Franz Josef, Emperor of Austria Hungary.

Reports that a settlement out of court for a large sum had been effected were published in February of this year, but attorneys declined to comment on them.

FOUR MEXICAN KIDNAPERS DIE

TEPIC, NAYARIT, Mexico, April 2.—(AP.)—Four members of the bandit gang holding J. E. Bristow, oil operator of San Angelo, Texas, prisoner, were killed in a clash with federal troops south of Ixtlan, Nayarit, Tuesday. Others of the gang escaped with the prisoner, who is being held for 30,000 pesos ransom—about $15,000.

The troops, headed by General Jose Lacarra had been pursuing the bandits for several days. They finally caught up with them and in a bitter fight routed them. The bandits to escape were believed to have taken to a hill which now is entirely surrounded by the soldiers.

There will be no attack, the soldiers preferring to starve the bandits out, rather than risk the bandits killing their prisoner, or his being struck by a stray bullet from the attacking force.

YANCEY LANDS IN BERMUDA

HAMILTON, Bermuda, April 2.—(AP.)—The American monoplane Pilot, which left New York yesterday for the Bermudas, reached Hamilton safely shortly before 10 o'clock this morning after having spent the night at sea a scant 60 miles from her goal.

The plane completed the journey under her own power. She flew to a point off St. George's earlier in the morning, landed there and then came from St. George's to Hamilton. She was accompanied down the north shore for a time by a motor launch which brought out gasoline.

The ship, for the first time in the history of ocean flying, had descended at sea, spent the night there and then was able to continue her voyage under her own power.

Capt. Lewis A. Yancey and his two companions, W. H. Alexander, pilot, and Zeh Bouck, wireless operator, had descended rather than risk overflying their tiny goal in the darkness.

BERLIN, April 2.—(INS.)—Germany awaited with interest today news of the Reichstag debate on the policies of Dr. Heinrich Bruening, the new chancellor, who yesterday warned that body that if it did not work and help solve the nation's vital problems it would be dissolved.

The spirited speech of the young and ambitious Centrist leader thoroughly aroused the opposition in the Reichstag and he was jeered by the Communists. Dr. Bruening said he realized he had a fight on his hands and that it was possible, if he did not win some votes from the Nationalist benches, that the Reichstag would vote against him.

But he is determined that an adverse vote in the Reichstag will not prevent his government from carrying on its program of financial and agricultural reform and eastern provincial relief.

Soviet Flight Culminates In U. S. Marriage

NEW YYORK, April 2.—(AP.)—After a courtship beset with difficulties in Soviet Russia, Miss Margaret Pollitzer, of New York, and Lindsay Hoben, Milwaukee newspaperman, were married here yesterday.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Pollitzer, is a director of the Walden School, an institution which adopts experimental methods. Mr. Hoben is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Allan Hoben, of Kalamazoo, Mich. Dr. Hoben is president of Kalamazoo College.

The couple first met last September in Central Russia when Miss Pollitzer, boarding a train at the village of Cuhdova, at midnight, was thrust into a compartment occupied by Mr. Hoben, his brother and cousin. The train was filled and when investigation showed the members of the Hoben party had no tickets, they were put off.

Mr. Hoben and his party secretly boarded another train and again met Miss Pollitzer in Tashkent, some 1,600 miles away. They were forced to flee, however, when word reached them that news of their arrival in a region barred to foreigners had been received by the Soviet police and that they were to be arrested.

After a flight through Samarkand they were again joined by Miss Pollitzer in Talif. Although Hoben said he pursued Miss Pollitzer through Syria, Turkey, Greece and Bulgaria, she did not promise to marry him until after his return to this country three weeks ago.

Andersen, Author Of Fairy Tales, Is Honored

COPENHAGEN, April 2.—(AP.)—The atmosphere of fairy tales hovered today over Copenhagen, for it was the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the birth of Hans Christian Andersen, that prince of fairy-story writers.

Over the houses, from the king's castle to Suburbia, flags and bright streamers floated in the breeze in his honor. And as fancied by Andersen in one tale, all children had chocolate and cakes at their schools.

Children played scenes from his fairy tales at their schools.

Marion Davies Film Gets High Praise in London

By HARRY CROCKER
Universal Service Special Radio.

LONDON, April 2.—Marion Davies, known in England as one of Hollywood's ablest comediennes, gained unanimous praise from the English press following the British premiere of her film, "Not So Dumb."

The critic of the London Daily Times wrote:

"Speech in the talking films is usually deliberate, but Marion Davies, as a voluble chatterbox, speaks nicely and without blurring her words. The story provides pleasant entertainment."

Critic Harman, of the Evening News, said:

"'Not So Dumb' is a brilliantly acted comedy. Miss Davies is triumphant as the volatile heroine, and her character work is perfectly acted."

"Marion Davies showed her powers of comedy as a talkative girl nearly ruining her fiance's chances of putting through a business deal with a magnate," says the Daily News.

"'Not So Dumb' is a bright-light talking picture having the merit of a novel idea," wrote the movie reviewer of the Morning Post.

"Dulcy is a pretty but blithering young thing, forever putting in her oar with disastrous results. All ends happily, for which the audience is grateful because Dulcy, being played by Marion Davies, is charming despite her irritating foibles."

Anti-Saloon League Leader Lauds Hoover; Voluminous Statements End Hearing

to cross-examine these people'"

"It does," said Graham.

"And I've been waiting 10 years for the opportunity to cross-examine the Anti-Saloon League on the witness stand!" exclaimed La Guardia.

Other liberals on the committee voiced protests, but the chairman's ruling was unchanged and consequently a flood of pro-prohibition argument went into the record in the form of statements from F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League; Canon William Sheafe Chase, head of the International Reform Bureau; E. C. Dinwiddie, of the Anti-Saloon League; E. I. Crawford, representing Bishop James Cannon, Jr.; E. H. Cherrington of the World League Against Alcoholism, and others.

HOOVER EXTOLLED

These statements all upheld prohibition, extolled its merits and recommended various measures for tightening up enforcement and making the operation of the law more drastic.

President Hoover was characterized in the McBride statement as more friendly to prohibition enforcement that any President since the Eighteenth Amendment was adopted.

McBride also for the first time definitely indorsed the Hoover prohibition reorganization program.

DRY PROGRAM FAVORED

"This administration is four-square as to the enforcement of prohibition and has presented to Congress a constructive program that will aid in making prohibition more effective," said his statement.

"President Hoover, on inauguration day, stood there in front of the Capitol and took his oath of office and in the first 10 minutes said more about prohibition observance than had hitherto been said by any chief executive of our country in 10 years."

Ex-Attorney General J. Weston Allen, of Massachusetts, was the one witness heard in person.

The Boston lawyer invoked decisions of the American courts to uphold the right of the government to forbid use of intoxicating liquor as a menace to society.

The committee will meet again in two weeks to give the anti-drys a chance to present rebuttal testimony.

Downtown Blaze Impedes Traffic

Traffic at Liberty avenue and Smithfield street was halted while firemen battled a blaze on the second floor of the Universal Light Company, at 949 Liberty avenue, last night. The flames had reached the third floor and dense smoke was pouring from the windows of the place when firemen arrived. Deputy Fire Chief Louis Conley estimated the damage at $2,500. The cause was undetermined.

LOS ANGELES, April 2.—(INS.)—Unable to escape from the path of an automobile after he pushed seven school children to safety, Policeman Benjamin T. Haley was near death here today. He suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

The driver of the car, Hawley Blackwell, was booked as a drunken driver.

Hurt at Initiation, He Asks $101,800

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—(AP.)—Alleging he was permanently crippled as a result of an initiation into Oakland Lodge No. 103, Knights of Pythias, last October, George M. Dever, Oakland barber, has filed suit for $101,800 in Superior Court here. The barber alleged he suffered two broken knees and other bone dislocations.

Bituminous Coal Output Passes Low Mark

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Bituminous coal production got down last month in the United States to about 7,800,00 tons, one of the lowest points registered in a similar length of time for nearly eight years. Railroad men, naturally interested in the movement since coal constitutes more than 20 per cent of all the freight traffic of the country, now consider that the peak of depression in the industry has passed.

"The coal traffic will have to come back now, because there are simply no stocks of fuel on hand anywhere in the country," M. J. Formley, director of the car service division of the American Railway Association, commented on the figures. "At the same time, there is no question but that one of the things which has enabled the current rate of supply to be cut so far down is progress in industry."

CANADA FIGHTS U. S. RUM BAN

OTTAWA, April 2.—(AP.)—Opposition to the government bill to prohibit the export of liquor into the United States was voiced in the Senate last night when the measure came up for second reading.

A proposal by Senator Willoughby that a special committee be selected by the Senate to secure information as to the probable effect of the bill on Canada's national and economic life and on international relations met with opposition from Senator Dandurand, government leader, who refused to accept the amendment.

Willoughby said while he believed in the most friendly relations between the two countries, he did not think Canada should be too generous, declaring that the Volstead Act was not being well enforced and that a straw vote now being taken in the United States showed opposition to it.

Massachusetts Dry Law Up to Voters

BOSTON, April 2.—(INS.)—Voters of Massachusetts at the state election in November will vote on the question of repeal of the "baby Volstead" act—the commonwealth's prohibition enforcement law.

This was made plain today following action by the House of Representatives in refusing, by a vote of 110 to 123, to enact the initiative bill calling for repeal. The vote was taken late yesterday at the conclusion of more than four hours of bitter debate before packed galleries.

KIN GETS BULK IN ALBEE WILL

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 2.—(AP.)—Bequeathing well in excess of $2,000,000 to relatives, friends and institutions, the will of Edward F. Albee, theater magnate, who died in Miami, Fla., on March 11, was filed for probate here. The amount of the estate was not estimated.

The will, dated August 13, 1929, left $1,000,000 outright to the widow, Mrs. Laura F. Albee, of Larchmont, N. Y. In addition it left her Albee's yacht, automobiles, the Larchmont estate, "Beaumere," household effects, and the residuary estate.

Reed Albee, a son, and Mrs. Ethel A. Lauder, a daughter, both of Larchmont, receive securities of unestimated value, personal property and the principals of various trust funds upon the deaths of the beneficiaries.

Edwin C. Lauder, also of Larchmont, a son-in-law, who, with the son, the daughter and the widow, is an executor, was bequeathed $250,000 outright.

SOUTH SHOWS DRY STRENGTH

NEW YORK, April 2.—(INS.)—Considerable dry strength has been revealed in two California cities, Fresno and San Jose, and in five southern cities, Montgomery and Mobile, Ala.; Pine Bluff, Ark.; Savannah and Tampa, by further incomplete returns in the Literary Digest's nation-wide prohibition poll.

San Jose polled more enforcement votes than either modification or repeal, but the combined wet vote exceeded the dry vote. Fresno's enforcement vote exceeded her repeal vote, but was less than her vote for modification.

The incomplete returns:

Eastern Rolling Mill to Jump Production

BALTIMORE, April 2.—Eastern Rolling Mill Company plans to increase operations to about 70 per cent of capacity later this week, comparing with 60 per cent earlier in the year. Orders are being booked at a more satisfactory rate and the company has enough business to insure maintenance of the 70 per cent rate for at least two weeks.

Other companies in this district are increasing operations, including Crown Cork and Seal Company, Black & Decker Manufacturing Company and Anchor Post Fence Company.

Williams, Former Star of Stage, Dies

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP.)—Fritz Williams, shepherd of the Lamos Club and once well-known on the Broadway stage, died yesterday of a heart attack in the grill of the club. Williams frequently performed under the auspices of the late Charles Frohman, producer.

'GOAT' RITUAL FOR SLAYER

DENVER, Col., April 2.—(AP.)—Supreme Pontiff Frank H. Rice, of the "Liberal Church of America," has announced he will carry out his plans for a "goat and adding machine" ritual for William Moya, condemned slayer, despite objection to his program by cardinals of the sect.

Yesterday Rice declared the goat would be used as a part of the "sack cloth and ashes" service shortly before and after Moya's execution set for the week of June 20. Prayer's for the condemned man's soul will be offered on an adding machine. Numbers, he explained, constitute the only universal language.

Rice re-affirmed his intention of carrying out his plans after making public objection to his practices he said were voiced by Cardinal Richard Wolf, of San Diego, Cal.

Moya killed Joseph Zemp, an aged recluse, in an argument over a small amount of money.

Funston Pension Bill Passes Senate

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP.)—The Capper bill, to grant a pension of $5,000 a year to Eda Blank Funston, of San Francisco, widow of the late Maj. Gen. Frederick Funston, was passed by the Senate and sent to the House.

As introduced by Senator Capper (Rep.), of Kansas, the measure called for a $3,600 pension, but it was later raised to $5,000 on motion of Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California.

Hoover Urges U. S. Join Ship Meeting

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP.)—Legislation to authorize an American delegation to attend the international load line conference in London in May, was asked by President Hoover in a communication to Congress setting out the need for an international agreement with regard to loading of passenger and cargo deep sea vessels.

President Hoover requested $20,000 for the expenses of the delegation.

Arabs Appeal Doom For Riot Killings

JERUSALEM, April 2.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency.)—The Arab executive has cabled the Arab delegation, now in London, urging it to do everything possible to obtain the waiving of the death sentence meted out to Arabs for the murder of Jews during last summer's riots.

The cable says that "the country is extremely excited because the appeal has been refused by the privy council."

PRIZES KAISER PHOTO, LOYAL TO U. S.

Crucible Woman Boasts Autograph of Ex-German Ruler; Now An American

By CHARLES A. FARLEY
Staff Correspondent

WAYNESBURG, Pa., April 2.—An autographed photograph and personal letter from the former German Kaiser is one of the prized possessions of Mrs. Michael Rostowich, of Crucible, near here.

The letter is in answer to Mrs. Rostowich's birthday greetings to the war-time emperor and also expresses appreciation for her condolences on the death of Princess Wolff von Schaumburg Lippe, his sister with whom Mrs. Rostowich, a former German subject, was personally acquainted.

Mrs. Rostowich

WERE CLOSE FRIENDS

From the time Mrs. Rostowich was 12 until 1920, when she sailed to the United States, she and the Kaiser's sister were bosom friends. A few years ago the Princess contracted a marriage with a former Russian nobleman which proved disastrous—later causing her untimely death.

Naturally enough, Mrs. Rostowich is a German war bride. Her husband was a member of the American Army of Occupation, stationed at and near Coblenz, on the Rhine after the World War.

During the conflict Mrs. Rostowich engaged in German Red Cross work. She became more intimately acquainted with the Princess who followed the same avocation. Prior to then they had attended many social functions together. In this manner the Kaiser heard of her, although she was never presented to him personally. She also acted as a telegraph operator during the war.

MEETS FUTURE HUSBAND

At Andernach, Germany, July 4, 1920, at a Fourth of July celebration by the U. S. forces, Mrs. Rostowich met her spouse. It was a case of love at first sight, she says. Although neither could speak the language of the other, love conquerd all. Language knew not the barriers of the heart, she relates. A few weeks later they were married. She bade farewell to the Fatherland and accompanied Rostowich to Crucible as a war bride. Only for a visit would she return, according to her story, as she "likes the U. S. very much."

The couple has two daughters, 8 and 8, winners in several juvenile essay contests on patriotism and kindred subjects. They were taught their first principles of Americanism from their mother's knee.

'OTHER WOMAN' SLAIN BY WIFE

PINEVILLE, Ky., April 2.—(AP.)—Declaring "she took my man," Mrs. Ruth Robinson, 19, of Cary, Ky., yesterday shot and killed Mrs. Sophia Patrick Massingale, when they met on the railroad tracks of this mining town. Mrs. Robinson then went to a store, tossed the pistol behind the counter and told clerks to call the sheriff.

There had been trouble between the two previously. Mrs. Robinson said last Sunday midnight her husband was in company with Mrs. Massingale, who she said is "up in her twenties," and that the two threatened her.

She declared Mrs. Massingale seized her by the hair when they met. She said she fired with a pistol she had because her husband was often absent from home. Mrs. Massingale and her husband, Dunning Massingale, are separated.

Clark, Walsh Put Curb on Police Courtesy Cards

Director of Public Safety James M. Clark and Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh today shut down on the issuance of police courtesy cards.

The action was taken on the grounds that the cards had been given out promiscuously and had found their way into the hands of all classes from white wings to bootleggers.

Originally intended for the use of business and professional men in enabling them to pass police lines, the cards hereafter will be restricted to such persons, Walsh and Clark announced.

BLAZE ON PIER LAID TO PLOT

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., April 2.—(AP.)—Fire believed by police to have been of incendiary origin, late last night destroyed half of the grandstand at the Ocean Speedway Pier. The timing tower and all timing instruments were saved. Police received reports from the night watchman that two men in an automobile drove up near the stand about 11:15 p. m., and shortly afterwards flames were seen to break at the rear of the structure.

Firemen said they found prints of kerosene cans in the sand behind the grandstand.

NEW CRUISER BEGINS DUTY

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP.)—The first of the United States new 10,000-ton cruisers has begun actual duty.

The Navy Department announced yesterday that the Salt Lake City, after a cruise to South America, had reported to the scouting fleet at Guantanamo and had been assigned to duty. A second cruiser, the Pensacola, is making a "shakedown" cruise preparatory to joining the scouting fleet.

Twenty-one similar cruisers are to be built under legislation passed in 1924 and 1928. A 13,800-ton aircraft carrier also is to be constructed.

Porto Ricans Fight Against Bank Sale

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, April 2.—(AP.)—Porto Rican stockholders of the American Colonial Bank voted disapproval of the sale of the bank to the National City Bank of New York on the basis of two shares for one.

They decided to draft a statement for all the stockholders in the United States, setting forth their reasons for rejecting the idea.

MAN MISSING, 4 IN CREW HELD

CHESTER, Pa., April 2.—(AP.)—Four members of the crew of the yacht Black Hawk, owned by Robert C. Rathbone, New York, were held without bail on charges of suspicion of murder. They gave their names as Peter Swanson, Fred Snyder, George Peterson and Jack Finhouster.

County authorities said members of the crew admitted a fight had occurred on board the yacht Saturday night as she lay off Essington, and that during the fight or shortly afterward Walter Fred Saunders, 19, disappeared. Saunders joined the crew at Jacksonville, Fla., the last port of call, and was seasick most of the way north. His belongings were found in his bunk.

The river near the yacht's anchorage has been dragged since Sunday without result. Saunders was believed to be from Philadelphia.

Freak Grain Links Barley, Wheat, Rye, Oats

READLYN, Ia., April 2.—(AP.)—William Shumacher has announced the development of a grain that in the field resembles barley with the color of rye, the flavor of oats and a kernel shaped like wheat.

Schumacher calls it barley, but says it has no barley in its composition. He developed the grain, he said, by conducting a hand pollinated cross between blue stem wheat and giant oats, and then by crossing the hybrid thus obtained with blue stem wheat.

This resulted, Schumacher said, in a grain with a large meat and a thin hull, maturing in 90 days. He is experimenting on its value as an early hog feed.

MAYOR SHOOTS 1, KILLS SELF

YAZOO CITY, Miss., April 2.—(AP.)—A feud between a mayor and an editor resulted yesterday in the shooting of F. R. Birdsall, editor of the Yazoo Sentinel, and the suicide of Mayor J. O. Stricklin.

Dr. R. E. Hawkins narrowly escaped the blazing gun of the Mayor with a bullet through his coat. Witnesses said Dr. Hawkins and Mayor Stricklin were standing on Main street talking when Editor Birdsall turned the corner. As the editor approached, the Mayor said:

"Well, I might as well have it out with you fellows now."

With that he pulled his revolver and pointed it at the dentist, but he darted up a stairway and caught the bullet in his coat.

The Mayor then fired twice at the editor, who fell. Witnesses said the Mayor fired a third shot after the editor had fallen.

Then Mayor Stricklin walked on his automobile and drove to his son's undertaking establishment where he ended his life by firing a bullet through his head.

MISS PATRICOLA, JIM CORBETT AND GLADYS RICE ON RADIO TONIGHT

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Radio Editor

LUMINARIES on programs tonight include Miss Patricola, Jim Corbett and Gladys Rice. The Philco Symphony directed by Howard Barlow will make its debut in a program of classical selections.

"Little Yaller Dog," an old standby of our own Virginia Harmon, will furnish a catchy descriptive for Gladys Rice on the Mobiloil program, WCAE at 8:30.

The vivacious Miss Patricola will amuse Van Heusen listeners on WJAS at 9 while the one and only "Gentleman Jim" Corbett, ex-champion, will be interviewed by Grantland Rice during the Coca-Cola broadcast from WCAE at 10:30.

John Barclay, Philco baritone, will depict the eccentricity of the king who had a high regard for a pet flea when he sings Mussorgsky's "Song of the Flea" as part of the Philco Symphony broadcast on WJAS at 10. Orchestra contributions to this feature will be a picturesque episode in Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries" and Claude Debussy's "Golliwog's Cakewalk," written to celebrate his little daughter's natal day.

President Herbert Hoover's short wave talk with South American republics will be broadcast tomorrow morning by KDKA and WCAE from 10:30 to 11:30, and by WJAS at 11 o'clock.

BEG YOUR PARDON

From Adam C. Fisher, Adamsburg, Pa., a letter criticizing us for calling Adamsburg "a four or five-house town in our Sunday column. He pens:

"For your information, Adamsburg can boast of having a coal mine, a broadcasting station, an Odd Fellows Temple, 61 houses, four stores, two garages, a hotel, a school house and nearby stands old historic Brush Creek Church.

"A man can be a radio editor on a city newspaper and might still be interested in reading some interesting data on a town which has had a postoffice for 107 years and where whisky sold for 25 cents per gallon on April 25, 1829, and for your benefit I am sending you some pages from my scrap book.

"The writer is a personal friend of Edward Tomajko, Jr., owner of station WGM, and I am wishing him the utmost success in the venture. Your article didn't give this unique station near the credit it deserves."

The last paragraph is a bit of honey: "We like your column and still read it but don't refere to us again as a four or five-house town."

* * *

In enumerating the assets of Adamsburg, Mr. Fisher neglected to mention a traffic light in the center of the town which makes tourists stop and take notice—an action, no doubt, of the Adamsburg borough council.

8 Out of 10 People Are Just Like Him

"I used to work on until I barely had time to eat, and then hurriedly," says Denis V. Coveney of 118 Van Wagener Ave., Jersey City, N. J. "The next thing I knew I was having indigestion from the excessive acid. Well! It was bad while it lasted. But I'm rid of it now, by taking Acidine. It sweetens my stomach and the gas is gone in a few minutes."

A normal stomach has all it can do to digest the starchy food you eat. What can you expect if you abuse it? Help your stomach by taking Acidine. Two million people are already depending on Acidi e because it is so sure, tastes so good and costs so little. Get it any drug store.

When You Want to "GO"

How many times have you gone through a hectic, nerve-racked day—cancelled an engagement the last minute—spent a miserable evening with friends—or stayed home and endured one of those aggravating nervous spells, just because your "NERVES" said "No" when you wanted to "Go" and enjoy yourself?

NOW—it is so unnecessary—so needless—to let "NERVES" interfere with your pleasures and good times. When your "NERVES" are frayed and frazzled—when Nervous Headaches, Nervous Indigestion, Blue, Irritable Spells, Sleeplessness and similar Nervous Troubles bother you—

Try This Delightful Way To Quiet the "NERVES"

Just drop an Effervescent NERVINE Tablet into a glass of water. Watch it bubble up like sparkling spring water—then drink it. You'll like this pleasing effervescent drink. It makes a delightful, harmless drink that seldom fails to help relax the "NERVES" and give prompt relief from most nervous troubles.

For more than 50 years, Dr. Miles' NERVINE (in liquid form) has brought grateful relief to thousands of nervous people. Now this same time-tested formula is offered to you in handy Effervescent Tablet form. In the Tablets the NERVINE formula is combined with bicarbonate of soda and citric acid which tend to correct acidity—a frequent cause of nervousness.

Accept This Trial Offer

We invite you to try Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablets whenever "NERVES" bother you. Get a package at any Drug Store on this "Money Back" offer. If you are not satisfied with the relief they give—your druggist will refund your money. Get a package today and have them on hand so your "NERVES" won't say "NO" when you want to "GO."

RULER RETURNS TO MONACO

MONTE CARLO, April 2.—(AP.)—Prince Louis and his daughter, Princess Charlotte, accompanied by her two children, have returned to Monaco from Paris as an outgrowth of Sunday's elections which resulted in a guarantee of the maintenance of the dynasty. All is quiet and peaceful in the principality.

Prince Louis is reported to have resolved to retain the throne but also to grant legislative reforms for which the party victorious at the polls on Sunday stands.

Prince Pierre, husband of Princess Charlotte, remains outside the principality in accordance with a recent judgment of separation and is said to be living near Cannes.

EDITOR SHOT IN FEUD DIES

YAZOO CITY, Miss., April 2.—(AP.)—Frank R. Birdsall, 65, editor of the Yazoo Sentinel and a member of the State Tax Commission, died early today of three bullet wounds inflicted yesterday by Mayor J. T. Stricklin, who committed suicide soon after the shooting.

The editor proved himself a newspaperman to the end. Warned of his dangerous condition, he stayed the hand of the surgeon until he could give explicit instructions to his reporter to write a full and unbiased account of the shooting on a main street here.

The two deaths ended a bitter feud existing since the editor published in his tri-weekly an account of the indictment of Mayor Stricklin on a charge of calf-stealing, of which he was acquitted later.

Dr. R. E. Hawkins, dentist, who became involved in the feud by opposing the mayor in the mayoralty election, was unharmed because of Stricklin's poor aim. Stricklin, sought to shoot him also, but the bullet passed through his coat as he fled.

WHY IS THIS WOMAN ATTRACTIVE

Secrets of Personal Magnetism Found Here and There Are Available to All.

What is it that distinguishes a woman here and there from her sisters, and lifts her into prominence, makes her popular with all people and gives her wonderful opportunity for usefulness? A woman to be useful in this world must be attractive—she cannot be sallow of skin, dull of eye, lethargic in mind, and at the same time wield influence over the people around her or draw to her those whom she would like to attract.

The question of attraction and influence over other people is very largely a question of good health. That radiant magnetism which draws friends and compels the adoration of loved ones is, after all, largely a matter of the correct workings of the digestive tract.

One can look in the faces of a thousand women one might meet on the street, and see the dull disappointment, and if he is a practiced reader of faces, can tell why these women are unhappy. Their bodies are not functioning normally, and their blood, instead of nourishing the skin and bringing the sparkle to the eye, is laden with the impurities of stagnation. Sometimes the stagnation manifests itself in the form of catarrhal troubles to which women are peculiarly liable. These troubles do not get well of themselves. They bring about a vicious cycle of unpleasant symptoms, because every catarrhal center infects the blood with its own poisons.

The cleansing of the blood stream cannot be done except by the proper stimulation of the great filters of the body—the liver and kidneys. When they are lazy, good health is impossible. But that is no reason to despair, and no reason why nine out of ten women who go about bearing the marks of impure blood cannot restore to themselves the brilliancy of good health and the magnetic qualities of a strong body. It is simply a matter of clearing away the wastes that defile the body, and stimulating the organs to proper activity—of dispelling the congestion or inflammation that relates to catarrh.

The experience of thousands shows that this is best done by the new prescription known as World's Tonic, which is the result of a profound study of these conditions. Treatment with this tonic brings about the proper regulation of the liver, kidneys and bowels. It helps remove the centers of congestion because it enables these great filters to clear away the blood poisons. It helps restore tone to the entire body, and it enables one to acquire the habit of good health with abundant energy and attractive appearance. You will find a treatment of World's Tonic will help you. It can be obtained at Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Manfloser, or any other good drug store. (A-45)

PLOT TO SLASH GIRL FOILED

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP.)—Three men, who said they had been hired, armed and driven to the rendezvous by a man they knew only as "Tommy," with instructions to rob Miss Marian Weill, employe of a brokerage house, and slash her face, were arrested in front of her Brooklyn apartment today by detectives who had been tipped that they were coming.

Miss Weill was robbed a month ago, at the same hour, by two men who bound her and her Negro maid and stole several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry.

The men arrested today described themselves as Jack Lee and John Gray, of New York, and Louis Duvall, of Louisville, Ky. They said "Tommy" had been particularly insistent that, in addition to robbing Miss Weill, they must slash her face.

Stepmother Awarded Boy Claimed by Kin

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 2.—Mrs. Mary E. Gillespie, of Ittawamba County, Miss., has lost her suit to recover her minor grandson, Eugene Lee Duncan, after a journey of more than 1,200 miles. A habeas corpus proceeding brought by her against Mrs. Mabel Duncan, of West Newton, was dismissed in court here today, with costs on the petitioner.

The boy had been brought to West Newton by his father, who had married the West Newton woman. Duncan died last fall, and the stepmother refused to surrender the lad.

GANDHI SPEECH WINS SCORES

SURAT, India, April 2.—(AP.)—Mahatma Gandhi, leading his volunteers on the march opening the civil disobedience campaign, arrived here and addressed a meeting so persuasively that 170 village officers of the district resigned.

It is understood that approximately 1,000 volunteers have been enrolled in the Surat district to support the campaign. Gandhi is marching to Jalalpur and on reaching the shores of the Gulf of Cambay will manufacture natural salt in violation of the government salt monopoly.

Reasons for Companion Popularity

Porcelain Tub—Because it is easily cleaned, sanitary—lustrous, smooth and durable.
Fast, Safe Washing—The smooth aluminum agitator and the square tub create a water action that cleans faster and thoroughly—yet without the slightest wear to your clothes.
Soft-roll Dryer—At a touch it swings to any one of 16 positions. No matter what position your tubs are in—the wringer will swing over them. This is an exclusive ABC feature. The extra large, 2-inch, soft-rubber rolls do not break buttons. Four pressure springs (an exclusive ABC feature) keep the pressure uniform. Heavy or light pieces—regardless of folds, lumps or seams—are thoroughly dried for the line. Pressure can be released instantly by flipping a lever—preventing danger to your clothes.
Porcelain Drainboard—Just a touch of a finger and it drains either way.

In fact this marvelous no-wringer washer—Washes, Blues, Rinses, Starches, Dries for the Line.
Its porcelain lined Spinner handles a whole tubful while another is being washed. It brings new kindness to clothes-drying. No broken buttons, hard to iron creases or torn garments.

March must be judged by its Exit

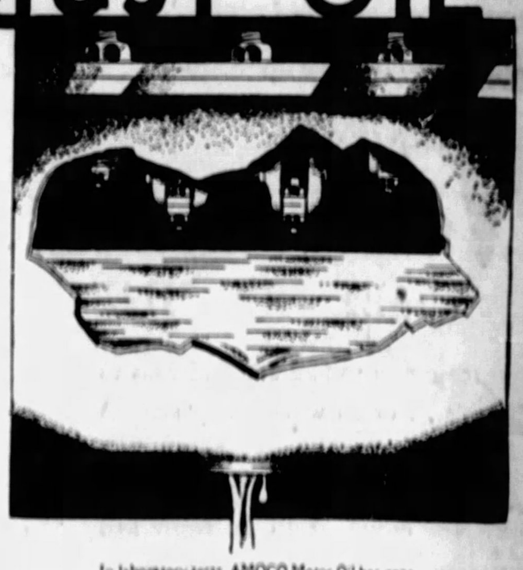
AND SO MUST OIL

MARCH, a fickle month, rushed in with a roar and bluster as though it were out to conquer the world. It seemed to wear itself out, however, and made its exit as meek and docile as any lamb.

Any oil may perform well when it goes into your crank case, but oil, like March, must be judged by its exit.

Even experts can't tell anything about the lubricating quality of an oil merely by looks or by feel. But laboratory tests and the experience of thousands of users show that even after a thousand miles, AMOCO Motor Oil still lubricates promptly and thoroughly, still protects the vital moving parts of your engine.

You needn't bother about the changeable weather of Spring if AMOCO Motor Oil is protecting your motor. For with AMOCO Motor Oil you always have a margin of safety.



In laboratory tests, AMOCO Motor Oil has gone the equivalent of thousands of miles and still remained satisfactory for lubrication purposes. Due to road conditions, however—the accumulation of dirt and sludge—it is advisable to change your oil every 500-1000 miles. Always have your oil drained while your motor is hot, as oil is thinner at high temperatures and carries away the sludge from the sides and bottom of your crank case.

DANDRUFF
A Sure Way to End It

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon from any drug store (that is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

for EVERY cold

"Light colds" soon become "heavy colds"—if neglected. Don't gamble with any cold. Use Vapex and breathe your colds away before they grip you. . . . Vapex kills the germs of common colds. The first deep breath instantly clears your head—opens up your nose—banishes all distress. . . . Use Vapex on your handkerchief in the mornings; use it at each end of your pillow in the evenings. One drop is all you need, for the vapor keeps its strength all day or all night. . . . Get V-A-P-E-X at your druggist's in the trim white box with the green triangle. Don't accept a cheaper imitation and expect the same results. Priced at $1 a bottle of fifty applications. A dollar now saves dollars and distress afterwards. E. Fougera & Co., Inc., New York City.

MRS. JOHN OSBORN

"After my little daughter was born the medicine I took didn't seem to build me up. One of my neighbors persuaded me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle made quite a change in me. I got an appetite and can sleep much better, am not so nervous and can do all my housework which is quite a chore as I have six children. I shall recommend your medicine whenever I have an opportunity."—Mrs. John Osborn.

I am on my third bottle and I cannot recommend it too highly. I feel like a new person now and I really think I would have been dead if I had not taken it. I think every lady ought to take it at the Change."—Mrs. Eunice Worthy.

Man Faces Murder Trial in Boy's Death

Thirty-First Ward Poll Plan Opposed

Opposition to changing district lines in the Thirty-first ward was voiced at a meeting of residents with Redistricting Commissioners Howard Neely, Joseph Armstrong, Jr., and John T. Small in the Hays school last night. The move was led by Charles J. McBride, Republican ward chairman; Thomas Bradley, Democratic ward chairman; Emily Bertan, Republican vice chairman, and Julia McKillup, Democratic vice chairman. They declared that changing lines by reducing the number of districts would mean that many voters would have to travel more than a mile to reach a voting place.

SEEK FORNEY WITNESSES

What has become of the missing witnesses of the "Al" Forney slot machine trial?

They are still missing, and that is all the sheriff's office knows about them.

Processes for Lawrence, Dale and Mack McCarthy, commanding High Sheriff Robert S. Cain to seize and bring into court the blamed for the Forney acquittal, have not been served.

Deputy Sheriffs R. M. Brown and W. A. Maginness, who have been entrusted with serving of the processes, say they have made diligent search for the McCarthys, but to the best of their knowledge Forney's three collectors continue to remain outside of the State.

Chief County Detective George W. Murren is likewise keeping watch over the haunts of the McCarthys, as are attorneys for the bondsmen who took out bail pieces for the McCarthys after they jumped their $1,500 bonds.

TWO BUS LINES ASK PERMIT

The Public Service Commission today held a hearing on the application of the Ohio River Shore Line Company for the right to operate motor buses between Wheeling, W. Va., and Pittsburgh by way of East Alexandia, Clairsville, Washington, Cannonsburg, and Carnegie. Arthur M. Hill, president of the company, testified that his concern owned 120 buses and planned to start service with two trips daily if the commission granted a certificate of public convenience. The trips would later be increased to three daily, he said.

The Lightning Package Express Company also applied for the right to carry freight by truck between Pittsburgh and various points in Washington County. Officers of the company testified that it planned to take over the business of Sherman O. Hanna, who now conducts an express service. The Pittsburgh Railways Company opposed the application.

When Babies CRY

Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue; won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine; it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

The Rainbow's End is within Your reach

DID you ever feel so desperate you wanted to jump out of a window? That's the wrong end of the rainbow.

Ill health is a burden on body, mind and friends. But Nature never fails to signal her dangers. Lack of appetite, flabby flesh, loss of strength and skin troubles is a warning from Nature. This is her way of pleading for help.

The basic requirement for good health is rich, red blood—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

Thousands of people have a low blood count—to this may be attributed "run down" systems, skin troubles, and even more serious ailments.

It is dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal.

A CLEAR SKIN COMES FROM WITHIN

When S.S.S. is indicated in your case you owe it to yourself and friends to try it.

If you desire firm flesh, a glowing complexion, energy, vitality and the blessings of health you must keep your blood in good condition.

First impressions can't be good without a clear skin. Old friends may excuse skin blemishes and secretly sympathize but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting, neither can they be covered up. They embarrass—hold people back—steal away joy and happiness.

S. S. S. has been a blessing to millions of people who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It gives to Nature what it needs to build you up so that your system may throw off the cause.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

Take S.S.S. daily at mealtime. It helps Nature build rich, red-blood-cells. It is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test for over 100 years. All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Wealth Depends Upon Thrift

Most of the Rich Men of America Began by Saving Their Scanty Earnings

by

Dr. W. J. Holland
Director Emeritus
Carnegie Museum

THRIFT is the corner-stone of financial prosperity. It does not imply niggardliness, but a due respect for values and possibilities. Wealth, which is financial well-being, depends upon thrift. Wastrels never become wealthy. It is not what a man spends, but what he saves, which makes him rich. Most of the rich men of America began their careers as poor boys. They began by saving their scanty earnings; they later saw favorable opportunities to embark in enterprises which gave promise of valuable returns and invested their savings in them, watching and aiding them by their counsel. I have known many of the rich men of America, and am familiar with the story of their lives. They began as poor boys and died, or still live, as millionaires. The foundation of their success invariably has been Thrift.

DR. HOLLAND'S life, rich with the experience of more than eighty active years, gives the weight of observation and practise to what he says about Thrift. Dr. Holland came to Pittsburgh as pastor of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church. In 1891 he became Chancellor of the Western University of Pennsylvania, resigning in 1901 to devote his entire time to the Directorship of the Carnegie Museum. Recognized as a distinguished scholar, naturalist, and citizen, Dr. Holland has found the rewards of Thrift in his own life. He has always worked systematically, with "due respect for values and possibilities." Only this full use of his time and effort have made it possible for him to win such renown in so many fields.

If you study the careers of great men, you will find that invariably they have planned and worked and saved. Success is never accidental. It is made possible by someone's foresight, someone's preparation. And this is what the Union Savings Bank wants to show in presenting these editorials by Pittsburgh's leading business and professional men.

Decide how much you ought to save, according to a good budget, and then consistently save that amount. The Budget Book of the Union Savings Bank will help you. Write or call for a copy—it is free of charge.

"The most service and the best at the least cost to the public."
—BELL SYSTEM POLICY

The Most Service

..... WHY "the most service"?

Because the value of your telephone service depends on the number of telephones you can reach.

Telephone service is different.

If yours were the only automobile in the world it would take you just as far as it does now. If yours were the only heating system your home would be just as warm as it is today.

But if yours were the only telephone it would be useless. Its value lies in the fact that it can be connected with other telephones. The more telephones with which it can be connected, the greater its usefulness.

Each day your telephone service is growing in scope and value. Last year 80,000 new telephones were added in Pennsylvania alone. By the end of 1930 we anticipate 80,000 more.

Increasing complexity of the telephone service mechanisms is inherent in a growing inter-communication service. Telephone research, invention, discovery are meeting this problem.

Your service will continue to grow in scope, usefulness and value.

HEAR APPEAL BY ENGELSBERG

The appeal of Joseph Engelsberg, Hill politician, for a new trial in the liquor conspiracy charge on which he was convicted and sentenced in the Federal District Court, was to be heard today in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia.

Engelsberg was convicted May 21, 1929, at a trial before Judge Nelson McVicar, who refused Engelsberg's motion for a new trial, but granted an appeal to the Circuit Court, after sentencing Engelsberg, November 14, 1929, to serve six months in the county jail and fining him $2,500. Pending the appeal, the defendant was released under $10,000 bond.

In opposing the appeal, the government will be represented by Assistant United States Attorney Raymond D. Evans, who represented the government in the prosecution in the District Court. The principal government witness against Engelsberg was Charles Berger, paroled bootlegger, who testified he purchased liquor from Engelsberg in 1926, but afterward repudiated his testimony.

THE HOLLYWOOD AND BROADWAY PARADE; LOCAL AMUSEMENT NOTES

Mr. Homer Croy Has Wife, Child, Car, House And Mortgages

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 2.

HOMER CROY, author of Will Rogers' flick, "They Had To See Paris," has been snared to town, via Fox contract. Mr. Croy gives an account of himself. To wit:

"I have heard that I was born on a farm near Maryville, Missouri, shortly after the close of the Civil War, both parents being home at the time.

"The first newspaper I was ever fired from was the St. Joseph Gazette. Later, a bigger and more prominent paper fired me—the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. I then went to New York, got a job on a magazine and drifted into novel writing.

Homer Croy.

Hobbies Being invited out to dinner.

"Now for the sole m n stuff. This year, 1930, I will have two plays on Broadway and a new novel out. The plays are a musical comedy version of 'They Had to See Paris,' and an adaptation of my novel, 'Coney Island.' The novel will be handed to a panting public in October.

"Home: New York City, where I have one wife, one child, one car, one house and two mortgages."

Mr. Croy will get along in Hollywood.

BEATRICE WAVES BACK

BEATRICE LILLIE, W K comedienne here to make a musik comedy for Fox, tentatively yclept "Are You There," has a new car. She started forth one noon. She got to Highland and Hollywood boulevard. Here, to her personal admiration and delight, she succeeded in making what is trafficly known as a U-turn.

A policeman on the corner waved to her. Miss Lillie waved back, pleased that he, too, should salute her splendid turn. Then he yelled: "Hey, you!"

Miss Lillie took her foot off the gas, surprised.

"Pull up to the curb."

She did, puzzled now.

"Don't you know you can't make a U-turn at Highland and Hollywood?"

He walked over to her, putting a foot on the running-board and yanking out book and pencil.

Beatrice Lillie. "A U-turn?" completely baffled.

He stared at her. "Where're your license plates?"

"I haven't any. This is a new car."

"Well, where's the blue slip on the windshield?"

"The wind blew it away."

"Yeah? And where's your driver's license?"

She searched her bag. "Dear me, I left it at home."

"Yeah; well, here's a ticket. Take this instead."

AND LEO ROARS

M. G. M.'S Leo, the lion, was left parked in his wheel cage in front of the studio's main executive building. He roared disapprovingly, which prompted Eddie Nugent to comment: "Uh huh. Leo's option is up, too."

SCREENALITIES: Renee Adoree's many friends are distressed to learn that she has been removed to a nearby sanatorium and allowed to see no one. Her condition is serious. . . . Jane Winton is back from two months' jaunt to New York. . . . Pat Rooney, Jr., and Doris Dawson are reported to be engaged. This has been going on for two months, but 'tis news to me. Pat's parents aren't jubilant at the idea of his getting hitched. . . . Hedda Hopper and Sally Eilers lunching tete-a-tete at the Embassy. . . . Lillian Sande, young British actress imported by Fox, chucking a luncheon at the same table spot. . . . Laura La Plante is still vacationing in New York. The rumor that when she returns she'll sign with First National persists. Perhaps the rumor gained ground because Bill Seiter (Laura's worser half) is a F N megaphoner. . . . They do be saying now that when Tom Mix finishes his Wild West tour he'll go in for the talkies. . . . Lola Lane signed a plump long-term contract with the James Cruze kumpny and the next day boarded a train en route to her home town. Whisper it. 'Tis Indianola, Iowa. And Lola has promised to appear in a benefit for the Ladies' Sewing Circle Club. Well, I'll be seeing you.

Beth Shalom Dance Chairman Appointed

Abe Caplan has been named general chairman of the good will dinner and dance to be held tonight in the Hotel Schenley by the Beth Shalom Congregation of Squirrel Hill.

O'NEILL'S NINE ACTS TO PLAY NIXON THIRD WEEK

Due to the interest in O'Neill's nine-act drama, "Strange Interlude," in the Nixon, arrangements have been made for the production to play an added week here, making the final performance in Pittsburgh Saturday evening, April 19. Mail orders are now being received for the third and last week of the production. There are good seats on sale at the box office for all the remaining performances, it is said. The play begins at 5:30 p. m. There is a dinner intermission lasting from 7:40 until 9 o'clock when the action resumes with a final curtain around 11 o'clock.

Famous as the 1929 Drury Lane Theater, London, success and with a record of 541 performances in New York City, the Schwab and Mandel musical romance, "The New Moon," returns to the Alvin for an engagement of one week, beginning next Monday night. A male chorus of 40 is augmented by a singing and dancing ensemble of 60. The same cast which presented this attraction last summer returns with it, including Charlotte Lansing, George Houston, Roscoe Ails, Gaile Beverly, Roy Gordon, Lucius Metz, Madeline McMahon, Elliott Stewart, George Leonard, John Grant and Al Baron. The seat sale opens tomorrow.

There are three sets in "Alias the Deacon," in which the George Sharp Players will appear at the Pitt next week. The first scene shows the interior of a box car, the second the lobby of a commercial hotel in the country, and the third the combination library and parlor of the same hotel. Berton Churchill, who originated the title role, will play it here, with the rest of the company appearing in his support.

Travel in Germany By Holmes Tonight

Burton Holmes has recently returned from Germany where he made new pictures of its characteristic customs and people against a background of quaint old towns and bustling cities. These pictures, together with the traveler's informative comments, will be offered in Carnegie Music Hall this evening, as the third topic in Mr. Holme's current series of travel revues.

C. H. McCarty, Father Of Grid Star, Dies

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP.)—Charles H. McCarty, 60, a stock broker with the firm of Stein, Alstrin & Co., and father of Austin "Five Yards" McCarty, former University of Chicago football star, collapsed and died suddenly late yesterday at a busy loop intersection. The younger McCarty was married last Saturday.

MUSIC

Carola Goya

Carnegie Music Hall

The Woman's Scholarship Organization of the Carnegie Institute of Technology presented Carola Goya in a recital of Spanish dances in Carnegie Music Hall last night. Though Senorita Goya substituted for another well-known entertainer, and though she came to us unheralded, this dancer won her way immediately into the good graces of the audience.

J. Fred Lissfelt

Carola Goya dances the steps of classic and modern Spain, and pantomimes the life of her Gypsies. Close on the heels of La Argentina, there were bound to be comparisons. Perhaps Goya is less subtle in her grace, but surely she has more variety, is almost as eloquent with her castanets, and has studied more deeply the dances of her people. Her rhythms are as delicate as the shadings of her castanets.

Goya is not without humor. There is pathos in her comedy, and though her Jota is highly jubilant, she is never the hoyden. In each of her fifteen dances there was a new costume, as distinctive as the dance, and often of unusual beauty.

Many of the dances interpreted the music of Louis Isopena doubtless a more popular writer. But strangely enough, when the more recent music of Spain's best composers, Albeniz, Granados, DeFalla was in question, the senorita's dances were also far more eloquent. Her pantomiming of Albeniz' "Cordoba" and his "Tango," as well as of Granados' intermezzo from "La Goyescas" could only have been suggested by a clever imagination. The ritual dance from DaFalla's "El Amor Brujo" was in the spirit of a superstitious savage. The "Del Rocio" was Spanish youth and religion on parade. There were pictures from every province, all based on fine observation of peoples and a real technique of the dance.

Iturbe Ortiz played the accompaniments and interludes.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Woman, Stricken, Drowns in Bath Tub

MT. HOLLY, N. J., April 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Howard I. Middleton, 48, drowned in less than six inches of water in a bath tub after suffering a heart attack here, George B. Bitting issued a certificate of accidental death by drowning. Her husband is well-known among photographers as a naturalist and photographer of wild life.

CLUB'S CHORUS SINGS CANTATA

The Tuesday Musical Club's program yesterday afternoon was given over to the choral section, which might have kept the program in its own hands, instead of introducing a soloist who brought some very poor music.

In three arrangements of national songs, Percy Fletcher's "The Galway Piper," Arthur Rider's "All Through the Night," and Deems Taylor's "Song to Bohemia," the chorus not only sang its best but really most musically. The balance in voices was here most evident, and the songs kept all the voices in their strongest register. Louis Edgar Johns' "Mother Goose Cycle," which opened the program is most ingeniously written and never has the composer lost the childish approach to these naive rhymes. His accompaniments are most successful.

Harvey Gaul's new cantata, "A Thracian Holiday," closed the program. It is a most pleasant melodious work, introduced by an Arcadian meditation, in the manner of Rimsky-Korsakof, for solo soprano. The choruses show many agreeable contrasts, and there are solo passages for solo tenor which still further enhance the fine qualities of this work. Will A. Rhodes and Mrs. W. H. Colvin sang solo parts.

Edgar Sprague gave two groups of most insipid songs, quite out of keeping with the policies of a club which stands for musical progress. Dr. Charles Boyd directed the chorus. Elsie Breese Mitchell and Martha Meyers Murdoch were accompanists.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Alimony for Woman Concert Conductor

LOS ANGELES, April 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Frieda Whitney, known as Frieda Sterling, concert conductor, has been granted a divorce for desertion from Richard Sterling Whitney, actor, but her request that the court impose no financial obligations upon her husband because he is ill was denied. Mrs. Whitney was given custody of their minor child. The court ordered Whitney to pay her $25 a month.

Chicago Suburb Bars Sunday Movies Again

EVANSTON, Ill., April 2.—(INS.)—This Chicago suburb still refuses to countenance movies on Sunday.

The proposition to have Sunday movies, rejected by thousands of votes in two previous elections, was lost by only 50 votes at yesterday's election. A recout has been demanded.

Your family and the Perfected Loaf

WHAT wife or mother does not realize that, of all the foods she gives her family, the first and foremost is bread? You serve it three times a day, every day of the year.

You will be quick, therefore, to appreciate the importance of the new perfected bread sold under the old reliable name Mother Hubbard. This perfected loaf gives you, in a single loaf, every admirable quality you have always hoped for in bread.

Not only is Mother Hubbard Bread beautiful to look upon in its uniform golden-brown crust . . . And, not only does its smooth, even texture make it a delight to slice and to butter . . . But more important than that, Mother Hubbard Bread has the real "bread" taste that makes your family want more and more of this nourishing food.

"Eat more bread" is a recommendation that doctors and other health authorities heartily make. "Eat perfected bread" they would endorse all the more readily.

Your family will notice the difference when you put Mother Hubbard Bread—the perfected loaf—on the table.

Get Mother Hubbard Bread at your dealer's. Ask for it by name.

MOTHER HUBBARD BREAD

The Perfected Loaf

With Walter Winchell On Broadway

NEW YORK, April 2.

ROBBER

I HAVE no rightful reason for complaint,
Your heart is free to wander where it may.
And whether you were Magdalen or Saint
Is something that I do not care to say.

For love is not a pastime for the weak,
And losers should be silent in their grief.
A love-sick lad can scarce be called unique.
And ills like mine are curable and brief.

Yet I have left a part of me with you,
A whistling carelessness that framed my youth,
Some gay illusions that I once thought true,
A grain of tenderness—a bit of truth:
And those who follow you will vainly try
To bring them back and fail, and wonder why!

WOTTA GUY!

CHARLES BRANDT, of Baltimore, tells of the greatest knocker of them all, known as "the constant knocker," who never even had a kind word to say about his mother. He was a small-time crook and with a partner pulled a profitless job only to have to keep under cover in a flat with his partner for many weeks. In desperation for some opium and ready coin the colleague was forced to phone a pal for help. The pal hastened over with a can of hop and loaned the pair $100 in case they wanted to make a getaway. After the pal left the flat the colleague turned to the constant knocker and said: "Gee, he's a swell guy, ain't he?"

"Yth," grunted the constant knocker, "but his brother's an awful heel."

TIP TO CHUMPS

THERE being such demand for theater courtesies by mercantile gentlemen who like to pretend they know the worthwhiles in the theatrical profession that Charlie Washburn advises play bankroll hunters to change their sales talk from "the show can't fail; you'll make a million," to "just think, you can write passes!"

YEH, YEH

On the East Side some of the pushcart peddlers sell nothing but pickles. The tiny ones, which sell for a penny each, are called "pickala," and the large ones, which sell for five cents apiece, are called pickles.

An old Jewish woman waddled up to one pushcart and began fingering the tasty things. She finally selected the largest on the cart and said to the peddler:

"How much cust diss pickala?"

"A nickala," grinned the peddler.

INDEFINITE

GIVE me the girl who slaps your face
When you attempt a mad embrace;
Who's never, never in a mood
To see a show that's labeled lewd;
Who thinks that Golden Wedding is
A sample of domestic bliss;
The girl who seldom is annoyed
By things that bother Jung and Freud;
I want that girl I warmly vow
In thirty-seven years from now!

THE WINCHELL INFLUENCE

ALLEN P. WALCH, of Manawa, Wis., writes that possibly he is the only one in that town of 727 population who reads this stuff, reading it in the Madison (Wis.) State Jounal Daily. Mr. Walch runs the Manawa Advocate, a typical country newspaper. "One of those sheets," he writes, "that gives a good many city news hounds and columnists ideas about which to make cutting wisecracks."

"And," he adds, "another mark to your credit, in my estimation, is that I have never seen anything of the sort in the columns that you do. Incidentally, none of the New York papers circulate out here. Well, I do a column, too, and the other day I decided to do an imitation of yours, including the blessed events of Manawa, the people who are that way, who will middle-aisle it and so forth. And what do you think happened? Most of my readers were so shocked they stopped their subscriptions!"

Tee, hee.

MERCILESS TRUTH

BIDE DUDLEY, one of the Broadway commentators of note, offers advice to people who ask him how they can be successful and famous in New York. Dudley advises, "By working hard and not overloading yourself with family entanglements, meaning he travels fastest who travels alone." Especially is this true in literary circles, says Bide. No single man or one who hasn't children fears losing his job. Equip a man with a wife and kids and he is not a free and independent agent. He must feed and clothe them; hence, unless he has a private fortune, or can look to relatives for help, he must foster that job.

For the wife and kidders?

BARS DO NOT A CAFE MAKE

NOT a few of the Federal investigators were amazed upon discovering that some of the Grandest Canyon's whoopee parlors did not contain a bar. As a matter of fact, very few feature them, excluding, of course, the speakeasies. To keep from having "evidence" on the premises the wiser managements sent out for the stuff, providing they know the patron, or he is well recommended.

Thus, when you hear a cafe man telephone a bootlegger and say: "Send over one G," he doesn't mean send over a grand or a thousand dollars, but one bottle of gin, which costs him two dollars, and which costs the customer five.

NIFTY

BEFORE the asbestos lifted on the Maurice Chevalier concert at the Fulton, Tex Guinan was being welcomed back to New York by many in the audience. To everyone she quipped: "When are we going to get together and lie to each other?"

But more amusing was the interview she gave to a reporter who asked her if she had a statement to make. "Yes, I have," cooed the most hostile of the hostesses, "tell them I was sorry to leave Chicago where they were grand to me and where the gunmen are not as bad as all that. Why, my dear, before I left there a group of gangsters presented me with a beautiful gold dressing set . . . "

"From whom," interrupted a flipcracker, "was it stolen?"

TRUCK KILLS GIRL, HURTS MOTHER

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

By WILLIAM PFARR

FIVE years ago Roy McGonigle, of the South Side, lost his valuable watch. He inserted an ad in the papers. There was no response. Mr. Gonigle became reconciled to his loss.

A few days ago a young woman telephoned him. "I've got that watch," she said.

"What watch?" asked Mr. McGonigle.

"The watch you advertised you had lost," she said.

"Why, that was five years ago," Mr. McGonigle argued.

"I know it was," the woman agreed. "I clipped the ad from the paper then. Pop's dead now, and my brother's gone away, and there's nobody left to use it."

It was an unusual picture of the war (the Civil War) that presented itself the other day to Bill Boyce, commercial manager of the Pittsburgh Railways. While rummaging through his effects Bill came upon a packet of letters written by his father, William, Sr. Most of the literature of that war (1861-65) has been stories of hardships. Here, then, was the diary of a boy who actually enjoyed the disagreement.

Boyce, Sr., was 19 when he joined the Union forces as a volunteer. His first self-imposed task was to grow a mustache and, this accomplished, he was forever boasting of the adornment in these letters to his mother and brother. And Bill wasn't in Camp Parapet, La., long before he complained of the quality of rum (he was susceptible to colds) and was writing home to brother Jim for a bottle of Yankee gin.

Fighting? Bill tells of the several times he went scouting (under the command of his father, an officer in the same regiment) for the enemy. But, the young man complained, he never caught up with the opposition.

WITH the limitations of space we must confine Bill's messages to this description of his activities:

"They fire a heavy gun within about three or four rods of here every morning (at least folks tell me so; I don't know anything about it). Then there is roll call; about a half dozen drum corps beating away, but I don't trouble about them; why should I? It's none of my business if they pound thunder out of them, as long as they don't trouble me; when they do, I shall have it stopped. Well, after I hear breakfast called, of course I have to tend out. After that is over, I come back to the tent, take a smoke (nothing to drink), roll over on to the bed and to sleep, and remain in that pleasant state until dinner time.

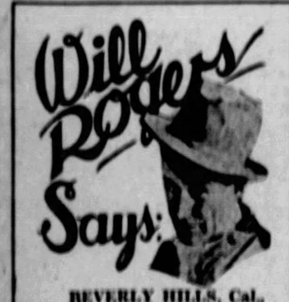
"When that time arrives you see Boyce up right on his muscle. I go down, take a little something, not because I want it, oh, no! but just to please the honorable captain. After that is over I return to the tent, take a smoke and, oh, Heavens! that bed again. I may sit down in any part of the tent, on chest or box or whatever else may be around, but it is no use. I am not content until I get into that bed. I stand it sometimes for half an hour or so, but I have to give in to it at last. I believe the Bible says that out of hell there is no redemption, and I believe that bed is something like the above-mentioned place, for once into it nothing short of grub can get me out unless I hear (from a darkey), 'Massa Henry, suppertime.' Then I go and dispose of some more rations. After supper I generally stroll around till bedtime. This is the life I lead, with but very little change."



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 2.

IT LOOKS like my friend Jim Davis is going to beat "Uncle Joe Grundy" for his seat in the Senate. "Uncle Joe" don't care, staying in there after the tariff is over, would be like a burglar remaining in bank after he had already sent all the loot out.

Each state is allowed two statues in the capitol hall of fame. The old Keystone state put William Penn in there for what he took away from the Indians for Pennsylvania. Now Grundy gets the other statue for what he has taken away from the white people for Pennsylvania.

Yours,

WILL.

REV. SPROUL'S TROUBLES IN COURT AGAIN

Evangelist to Answer Charge Of Fraudulent Conversion Before Alderman Tonight

The Rev. John W. Sproul, evangelist, will be given a hearing before Alderman C. B. Quailey tonight on a charge of fraudulent conversion, filed by John M. Luterman, commercial manager of radio station WMBJ, over which Sproul broadcast sermons at some of his meetings.

Luterman charges that $1,000 given Sproul for payment of telephone wire service was devoted by Sproul to his personal use.

Several months ago Sproul waived hearing before Justice of the Peace Richard S. McCarthy, of Millvale, when John Vogel, an invalid, of Colton street, Millvale, charged that he loaned the evangelist $5,000 toward the erection of a "Glory Barn" in Parnassus, and that only $2,000 was paid back. Last fall Sproul was arrested on a charge of passing a worthless check on a gardener for work in beautifying the former's lawn in front of his Thomas boulevard home. The case was settled out of court.

PORCH GARAGES WIN APPROVAL

The construction of garages under porches is permitted by the terms of an ordinance approved by Council in committee yesterday. Final action will be taken Monday.

The ordinance will affect hundreds of small home owners. It amends the present zoning regulations which require that the garage itself be in the cellar of the house.

Councilman Robert J. Alderdice contended that in many cases where a small home owner wishes to construct what is termed an "embankment garage" there is not sufficient room in the cellar for his car. The amendment does not permit any change in the porch lines.

Councilman George J. Kambach voted against approval, saying he believed the ordinance too sweeping.

Ross School Nurse To Get Auto Gift From Citizens

Citizens of Ross Township who have watched Miss Katherine O'Donnell, their school nurse, established what they think is a walking and hill-climbing record, plan to make such feats unnecessary in the future.

By public subscription, say the parents and friends of the 700 township children to whom Miss O'Donnell ministers, they will provide her with an automobile. The Board of Education has promised to pay the upkeep of the machine.

Although Ross Township boasts many improved roads, the location of its five schools and its peculiar topography has made Miss O'Donnell's task of visiting the homes of children who are sick almost a superhuman job, those sponsoring the drive for the automobile declare.

Mrs. J. B. Williams, of Perrysville, is one of the leaders in the drive.

The entire construction program sent to Council Monday by Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang has been approved by the councilmanic committee on Public Works and will come up for final passage Monday.

It includes the extension of the Boulevard of the Allies, the widening of Whitfield street, the opening of a new portion of California avenue and other projects.

Liquor as Snake-Bite Antidote Given Jolt

The stock excuse for taking liquor on a hunting or fishing trip—that it may be needed as an antidote for snake-bite—is robbed of its value by advice on the subject given out today by M. Graham Netting of the Carnegie Museum, an authority on snakes.

If bitten, Mr. Netting said, one should not run or get overheated or take alcoholic stimulants, as circulation, increased by exercise or by alcohol, serves to distribute the poison much more rapidly through the body.

The snakes will soon be waking from their winter torpor; the trout season opens in less than two weeks, and multitudes of Pittsburghers will be taking to the woods and streams. For their protection, Dr. Netting has compiled a large amount of material about the poisonous snakes of Pennsylvania.

There are only three kinds, he says—the copperhead, the massasauga or pygmy rattler, and the banded rattlesnake. Copperheads, according to Dr. Netting, are common; he reports they have been killed within the city limits of Pittsburgh within the past 10 years. The massasauga has been found only in Allegheny, Butler, Mercer and Crawford counties, but the banded rattlesnake occurs in most of the mountainous sections and in Dr. Netting's opinion, is increasing in numbers.

Campers were invited by Dr. Netting to use the facilities of Carnegie Museum. Specimens of reptiles sent to the museum, he said, would be identified and then either returned or added to the museum collections, as the sender desired.

WHITE HOUSE GANG

Boys Knock Officer Down With Huge Snowball

Theodore Roosevelt, when President of the United States, started the adventurous, rollicking, joyous career of the White House Gang by sending his youngest son, Quentin, to the Force Public School in Washington. Here the gang was recruited. The accredited members are Charles (Taffy) Taft, "Brom" Seeley, Dick (Sailor) Chew, Edward (Slats) Stead, also called "Bedstead," Walker White, "T. R.," the most active member of the gang; Quentin, the leader, and Earle Looker, the author of this story.

Each day, after school, the gang went into a huddle to confound all rules of deportment in high places, mingle in the lives of presidents and policemen, win victories, taste honor, suffer punishments and engage in escapades which were swept along the wires to national publicity. Many exploits of the gang, however, either remain unknown or were known only to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Some there were securely hidden even from them.

CHAPTER XXV.

"NOW listen to me," said Q, magisterially. "If you aren't the boy, we're giving you this money because we've held you unjustly. If you are the boy, it's being paid to you to keep away from that bunch you were with as many days as there are cents here—just 40."

"I di'n't have nothin' t' do 'em, nosir," the boy repeated, "but, jus' as you say, I'se keepin' away from 'em from now on!"

"I don't exactly like the way you say that," Q criticised, "but I haven't time, now, further to argue with you. Did your bunch see which way you ran?"

"Nosir, nosir, they di'n't—but I di'n't been with no bunch. . . ."

"By buzzard!" Q cried, greatly aggravated. "I don't know what to believe! You ought to be made to swear an oath—hope you die! Dick, give us the chain and padlock, and we'll fix him so he won't get into trouble—"

Dick demurred.

"Give us the chain, I say," Q insisted. "Quick—before anybody—least of all, that house breaking bunch, sees what we're doing!"

The chain and padlock were promptly handed over, and to the boy's great terror, his hands were put behind his back and securely fastened with the chain, and locked with the padlock.

"How'll he ever get out?" Dick questioned.

"He'll have to get somebody to bust him out with a hammer," Q replied. "You don't suppose I'd give him the key of the lock to put in his pocket, do you? That would be a dead give-away—"

Story Fixed

Gang Prepares Alibi For Colored Boy

"Now," said Q, addressing his prisoner, "I know this is going to be a lie, but you look as though you've told lies before, and telling this one won't hurt you, I'm sure. Go back to your bunch, and tell 'em we jumped you in the vestibule, choked you, beat you, and fastened your hands with this chain, before we came upstairs. Understand?"

The boy nodded; whether he understood or not, was not clear.

"Oh! I forgot!" Q said suddenly. "We must tie a handkerchief around his neck as though he'd been gagged. That, of course, is why he couldn't yell, after we left him—"

Walker White promptly contributed his handkerchief. Soaked in the gore which had flowed from his pounded nose its further use was but negligible.

"Now don't forget what you're supposed to say," Q advised, relaxing his grip upon his captive. The youngster ran off as fast as his short legs would carry him. We watched him go—a black streak of terror flying down G street; twice he fell, probably, because of having his hands chained behind his back. But he continued on his way.

Proud of Victory

Boys Enjoy Sensation Of Power

"I wish I really knew," Q sighed, "whether we caught the right one—or one like him . . ."

Needless to say, this adventure was regarded as one that had better be given no mention, domestically or publicly. "It wouldn't be wise po-lit-ically, either," Q remarked later. "Just imagine the sort of story the Democrats would make of it!"

But the story we made out of it, ourselves, was enough. We had encountered a tough, plundering, rival gang of our own weight and age. We had met them in open combat. We had fought with a new unity and fierceness. We had won and had been magnanimous. Our morale was high. We went back to the White House, nursed our wounds and permitted our minds to dwell much upon our valor. We had vanquished a band of toughs and felt tough ourselves, and thoroughly enjoyed the new sensation of independent power, without help or favor of any sort. We were soon to learn, however, that we had become just tough enough—to be brittle . . .

The higher the morale of the Gang, the greater, of course, its daring . . . which led us up to the dizzy roof of the White House which, under our feet, seemed almost to be blotted out by the snow. There were great drifts of it in the inside gutters. The sharp outlines of the balustrade and the two rows of square chimneys were softened and blurred. Away down, and across Lafayette Square, we could see Andrew Jackson raising his cocked hat with tireless arm, regardless of the wet snow piled up upon his leonine locks; and the pigeons fluttering around him, almost invisible against the marble base and the white-carpeted ground.

Fun With Snow

Policeman Stands in Dangerous Place

The Gang mushed trails, all about the "bridge," stepped off upon the virgin purity of the snow and on to the gently sloping roof, above the old attic. We slipped and slid and fell and divided up for pitched snowball battles from one balustrade to the other. From this height it was our special delight to drop large snowballs, the centers of which contained old electric light bulbs. This could be done only on rare occasions; great strategy was needed to get the bulbs; also, the excitement it caused among the White House staff, took time to abate; for when the bulbs struck the concrete of the areaways causing loud pops, which reverberated as sharply as pistol shots, policemen, secret service men and attendants came on the run, from all directions. . . .

On this particular Saturday this sport was suggested but vetoed, so instead we packed big snowballs on the level walkway of the "bridge" and rolled them.

"By buzzard!" Q cried. "Something's got to be done with this one. It's too good to waste!" He put his head out between the side balustrades of the porte-cochere and looked down. Then he withdrew it, and gestured. The Gang looked over the edge of the cornice, and could see the figure of a policeman away below. He was standing, like a statue, on fixed post, a few feet from the center columns of the porte-cochere, and facing it with the greatest, and, to us, the most unreasonable solemnity. At his right the carriage-drive went under the porte-cochere, at his left the

HELD IN 'FRAT' CHECK RACKET

William Pruyn, 47, of Kansas City, was held by city detectives today as a worthless check passer.

Pruyn, according to information contained in circulars sent out in a fraternity magazine, is, or represents himself to be, a college graduate. The magazine lists every member, giving the class, college and his accomplishments in school.

Scanning these, detectives said, Pruyn looks up the more prosperous members, pays them a visit and chats about "old times."

His arrest came yesterday when he visited Charles A. Saints, of the Power Equipment Company, in the Oliver Building, according to detectives. Pruyn was alleged to have represented himself as a Mr. Ballinger, a fraternity brother. To Saints he recalled the college activities of 1903.

Saints, becoming suspicious, referred to his list and found there was a Ballinger. Further, he discovered that the Ballinger listed was dead. Saints summoned Detectives Edward McEntee and Clarence Raeder, and Pruyn's arrest followed.

Carrying on his activities Pruyn, according to detectives, would ask to have a check indorsed and would go to the "brother's" bank and have it cashed.

P. R. R. ASSURED RIGHTS FOR ABUTMENTS

Compromise Reached When City Learns Big Program Of Railroad Is Delayed

The widening of Eleventh street with the companion project for an overhead railroad bridge from the Fort Wayne tracks to the new Pennsylvania produce yards is being considered by Council.

That body yesterday declined to approved an ordinance for the widening, City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt declaring that the railroad company first should provide the 20-foot strip of land necessary.

When it was pointed out that the construction program of the railroad company was being held up, this compromise was reached:

1.—That the Public Works Department prepare an ordinance giving the company authority to erect the necessary abutments on the present Eleventh street and the rest on the property that is to be given to the city.

2.—That the company agree, in writing, to dedicate the property, meanwhile permitting the city to lay sewer lines.

Under an agreement between the Pennsylvania Railroad and the city in 1925 the widening was agreed upon. The dedication cannot be made until the directors of one of the railroad's subsidiaries meet in June.

An allied ordinance vacating a small portion of the wharf near Eleventh street was held over.

NEW ORLEANS, April 2.—(AP.)—Three street cars were bombed in the upper section of the city last night in a resumption of hostilities growing out of a strike of employes last summer.

One car was bombed twice. About 25 passengers were aboard, but none was injured.

Carrying a score of men and women, a Freret car was dynamited in front of the Loyola University football stadium.

Within a few minutes another Freret car on its way to the barn with only a motorman and conductor, passed over a charge of explosive that cracked one of the wheels. Moving slowly toward the barn after the explosion, it was again bombed a short distance from where the previous blast occurred.

GEM ROBBERY HELD 'FISHY'

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP.)—The police theory that the Von Buelow $50,000 jewelry robbery Monday night was an "inside job" brought Mrs. Lottie Brenner Von Buelow, her estranged husband, Enrique Dechow Von Buelow, and others to detective headquarters last night to retell their version of the affair.

Detective chiefs announced after the conference that they had gained little additional information about the robbery, but that they had definitely discounted the story that Von Buelow is a German count.

The Von Buelows and four other members of the household and guests were bound, gagged and blindfolded by three men, posing as census takers, who ransacked the mansion and escaped with Mrs. Von Buelow's jewelry.

A week ago Mrs. Von Buelow filed suit for divorce from her husband, who is 20 years her junior. He arrived while the robbers were binding up the others.

John Stege, deputy police commissioner, said the robbery looked "decidedly fishy" to him.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Laura Mead To Wed in Paris

WEDDINGS will soon be as numerous as apple blossoms. Of course there aren't so many of either one right now, but the coming weeks will bring a profusion of both. And in the meantime April days bring plans for weddings as well as showers to encourage reticent May flowers.

From Huntington, W. Va., comes news of one wedding of interest, that of Laura Mead, daughter of the A. D. Meads, and Joseph A. Morris, Jr., of Paris, France, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Morris, of Oxford, N. C. The marriage will take place the afternoon of May 21 in Paris. And the bride-elect will sail on Monday on the Carinthia with Raymond Whitcomb and her aunt and cousin, Mrs. Otto Schroll and Laura Elizabeth Schroll, of Park Mansions, and Martha Caldwell, of Wheeling, for a Mediterranean cruise. On May 17 the bride-elect will go to Paris.

To Live Abroad

LAURA attended the Gardner School in New York, and is a member of the Junior League. Her maternal grandfather, the late Alfred Caldwell, of Wheeling, was at one time attorney general of West Virginia; and her paternal grandfather was the late Charles Powell Mead, of Ashland, Ky., who was founder of the Charleston National Bank.

Her fiance is a graduate of West Point. After their marriage, at which they will have no attendants, they will motor through Switzerland and the Austrian Tyrol and will make their home in Budapest.

Spring Travels

NOW that April is here people, according to Chaucer, are wont "to goon on pilgrimages." And they still do. Many folks are taking advantage of the season to visit friends. Louise Evans, daughter of the Henry Oliver Evanses, has had as her guest Priscilla Palmer, of New London, Conn., and Mountain Lake, Fla. Priscilla plans to spend the spring months abroad.

Dr. and Mrs. Alexander C. Blair are in New York, I've heard. And the Simon T. Pattersons have returned from Gotham and Atlantic City. Another Pittsburgher attracted by New York is Mrs. George A. Harwood.

April Brides

TODAY I can tell you of two more weddings of social interest, both to take place in Baltimore on Saturday. Frances Jean Bakewell, daughter of Mrs. D. List Warner, of Baltimore, is to marry Cyril Vernon Connolly, son of Maj. M. W. K. Connolly and Mrs. Connolly, of Lock House, Deepcut, Surrey, England, in the home of the bride-elect in Woodbrook, a suburb of Baltimore. The ceremony will take place at 6:30 o'clock, with the Rev. S. Tagart Steele, Jr., rector of St. David's Protestant Episcopal Church, officiating. The reception will be informal and, because of mourning in the family, there will be only a few intimate friends in addition to the members of the two families present.

Frances Jean will have as her maid of honor and only attendant, her sister, Anne, who will make her bow to society next fall at the first Bachelor's Cotillion. Hugh O'Connor, formerly of England, now of New York, will be the best man.

Bridal Costume

THE bride is to wear a princess gown of eggshell satin with a veil of Brussels lace, given her by the bridegroom's father, which is a family heirloom once belonging to his great-grandmother. The bride's bouquet is to be of white orchids.

Immediately after the reception the Cyril Connollys will leave for New York and will sail on April 9 on the Mauretania for Southampton, England. Later they will visit the continent.

The other wedding will also be a very quiet affair. Ann Edith Chipman, whose engagement to Martyn K. Coster, of Walnut street, was announced by her sister, Miss M. Blanche Chipman, of Cedarcroft road, Baltimore, in February, will be the other bride of Saturday. And, as I said before, that wedding is taking place in Baltimore too.

Gotham Wedding

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM LAWSON BRADLEY, of Chicago, announce the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Marion Bradley, of New York, to William L. Rodgers, Jr., formerly of Pittsburgh, son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Rodgers, of New York, which will terminate in a May wedding.

Music Club Hears New Work

THE usual large and enthusiastic Tuesday Musical audience heard the annual spring program, a most delightful one, by the choral yesterday in Upper Memorial Hall under Dr. Charles N. Boyd's direction and with Elsie Breese Mitchell at the piano. Two unscheduled features, the presence of a second soloist and of English visitors, gave additional interest to the afternoon. Edgar Sprague, tenor, accompanied by Martha Meyers Murdoch, substituted at the last minute for Will A. Rhodes, who was able to sing only the tenor part in Harvey Gaul's brilliant "Thracian Holiday," a number that was given its premiere performance. The composer and the two soloists, Mr. Rhodes and Mrs. William H. Colvin, and Dr. Boyd received an ovation at its close.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Scholes, of London, were guests of honor for the afternoon and received with Mrs. Arthur B. Siviter, president of the club, and the soloists at the conclusion of the program. As part of the program Mr. Scholes, who is an internationally known musical educator, spoke on "What There Is in Music." He stressed the fact that America is fortunate in having so many more women's music clubs than Europe and is rapidly overtaking Europe in the number and quality of choral societies.

The tea tables were centered with spring flowers and tall candles in silver holders, and presiding at the tables were Mrs. Emerson Hess, Mrs. E. J. Edsel, Mrs. H. D. Everett, Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell, Mrs. Charles Brautigan, Mrs. Joseph R. Gray, Mrs. W. E. Luce and Mrs. Frank Myler.

PALE BLUE COLORS THE SPRING FASHION HORIZON

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, April 2.—A pale blue cloud guides followers of fashion by day and night, leading them through the rainbow mist of pastel colors. Trailing delicately in its wake is a spindrift of lace, chiffon, net, tulle, and myriad other filmy fabrics—prerequisites of feminine fancy. One might be blue from morn to midnight and at all times be happily costumed, as is evinced by the late here, the are there is of black pastel blue many collec- assuming seems to cast and allure that ing with the season.

models of creation. Although all pastel shades favored and a great deal and white, dominates tions with unnaivete. It a spell of charm is entirely in keepstyle mood of this

LACE, having become as much a part of Spring this year, as budding trees and sunlit brooks, is expressive of Molyneux's enthusiasm for pastel blue as illustrated in the gown shown today. It also serves to reveal the new evening silhouette featured by this house, which is inspired by the classic Greek. The sculptured lines are revealed by the extremely snug-fitting skirt which, at a point just below the hips is placed a series of half-circular, half-pleated flounces. They flare and swing in motion and create the same line as the high belted Greek tunic, while beneath them the skirt flares in a series of deeper flounces which reach to the instep, or even length all around. The lace in this case is of a rather heavy quality.

ANOTHER heavenly blue is found in the light blue wool romain which Philippe & Gaston have used to create this tailored afternoon frock. M. Gaston is placing much of the trimming detail this season at the waistline or in its immediate vicinity which enthusiasm he has expressed with detailed simplicity in this model. Radiating pintucks and buttoned tabs are the treatment in this particular case. The set-in yoke and cuffs are of delicately worked lawn and real lace. The waistline is not exaggeratedly high and the skirt only moderately.

Barry Says He Cares More Than Ever for Chickie

CHAPTER XLIX.

IN her mind was a black spot of terror. It grew large—a stark living thing, shaking her pulse with dread. It was the memory of the night.

She shrank from it. It pressed down and seized her heart. It was a dark, heavy beast crouching on her chest. She tried to beat it off. It came nearer and blew warm, sickening breaths in her nostrils. Fighting, she had to draw them down. Again and again. Till even the anguish within her stifled and was still.

She lay in this cold abandon, motionless, afraid to turn. She tried to sleep. No sooner were her eyes closed than images let loose beneath their lids. She saw herself in the canoe leaning against his knees, reaching up her hands to touch his face. She remembered searchingly the wild, hot tumult of her heart, the livid sounds her lips had spoken: "Love you enough to die for you! Oh—and that little islet was out in the ocean and only you and I in all the world—only us. Barry—every one else all gone—"

And that—and that was but half of what she had said—

Now—in the whimpering chill of her spirit she could have slain this other Chickie; beaten to death the vain, fevered thing standing before the mirror putting perfume at her ears. Laughing at herself, radiant and excited. Running down to meet him, expectant—half aware, paddling into the still dark of the bay; letting it sweep them into the wild, hushed ardor of this dream.

Not she who had done this! Not she, swept helpless in that blaze of emotion, clinging to his hand, following him up the rocky slope of the islet. Oh—it was never she. She would awaken soon from this night of torture; be "lad again; get back to yesterday, to the morning, lying joyous in the sun.

And that other who sank in his arms with a faint. "Yes—oh, don't!" who took to white, vivid face in her hands, imploring when he murmured hoarsely: "Chickie—we love each other—think of that—I love you—" that other would vanish.

Panic-Stricken

But even her thought could not achieve this; could not leap behind that eternal moment. The past was gone; shut out irrevocably by this red, aching wall of flame. She could never beat it down. Cry—yes—smother her head in the pillow—claw her hands against her face—let the tears pour. It would remain.

She hid from it—oh, she would get away—push off this thing of horror weighing so heavily on her breast. Be free—be light again.

She hated herself. Turning on the pillow, her hair fell across her face. With a violent revulsion she flung it back. Oh, this sickening contact with herself. If she could get away from her breath, from her own hands, from her feet that were so cold they ached! If she could fly out of this body that held her fast to the immutable yesterday.

She pulled the covers up to her eyes, stared at the redwood trees towering above the porch, stared fixedly, trying to freeze her brains against thought. She said to herself: "Oh, so many stars—" And there was nothing sad about that; nothing terrible, but it made her cry. And she kept saying: "I never saw so many stars—" cowering lower in the bed, pulling the blankets higher, calling: "God—oh, God—"

When she cried her heart turned and turned. It was a heavy thing that moaned and beat its arms. She crushed her hands about it, pleading: "Don't, oh, stop—"

It wouldn't still. In this writhing panic she wondered how long she must lie like this; if this writhing thing within her would ever stop—

Awakened by Dad

Moments from the night before, returned, stood at the bed, fixing her like bayonets. When she turned miserably from one, another caught her. Now it was the flushed joy in her heart an instant when she glanced upward to his face, saw it dim yet beautiful in the dark; now it was throbbing madness when he drew her head against his knees, whispering: "Our last hour—if it were, who knows? 'Would you then?"

They whipped her—these memories; they brought, too starkly before her the hot images of her self. Oh—take them away—let her blot them out—

At last the moon, riding in a gray, chill mist, swept over the trees. It fastened itself in a vague, white cloud. It put a coldness on the night; it took the radiance from the quiet, appealing stars.

It seemed to Chickie that things died; that even torment of the morning.

She slept, not knowing the relief. It seemed that she had only turned and then a hand was on her shoulder. Then some one said: "Chickie, girl—sleep all day, are you? Isn't the lad going?"

She twisted the covers in her fists, pressed her face hard against the pillows. Jonathan's hand crushed her; Jonathan's voice opened the wildness in her mind. She said, "Don't! I'm tired—oh, Jonathan—" And it seemed to her that she would die if her father didn't stop, or if he stooped down, as he so often did, patting her cheek and kissing her. She waited, cold with fear. Now she knew that a hurt look was coming into his eyes. Now he was walking heavily to the kitchen.

She ran from the bed to the wash basin. Her eyes looked small—puffed. She dashed the water again and again against her face. She put her hair high and pulled it down, half hiding them.

If Jennie should watch her—if Jennie should insist on sitting at the table and making her eat—

With hysterical caution she called out gaily: "Jennie, darling, rest yourself under the tree! I only want a cup of coffee. Did you leave it on the stove? Don't come in!"

And for once the self-effacing Jennie, engrossed in the cooking recipes in the paper of the previous evening, nodded absently. "All right, dear! It's on the stove."

She was so grateful for this that escaped tears filled her eyes—they dropped into her coffee. That reminded her of the morning when he had argued with her when he had said: "It won't make our love any lighter, will it? It's as right as the sun—as the river flowing down here to meet the ocean. It is to me!"

Did he feel like this now? Would he come again to sit fearlessly at her side and speak this hot, reckless defiance? Was that only on his lips—a boy's love, hot and swift?

And he would put it from him. She had given too much. So he wouldn't want it now. He wouldn't care any longer. Men were like that. Oh—she knew. And perhaps it was their last hour.

Well—she would kill herself. She would never see coldness on his face.

Just thinking of this spread an alarm like a deadly poison up through her throat—down over her heart.

Go and leave her? Forget her? His white, vivid face, hers no more?

No—he couldn't—they were bound—a thousand ties—he wanted to feel them—they drew him so—

She was on fire to see him—only a glance. She would know. He wouldn't need to say a word. And craving this thing wildly, she fled from it. Oh—she would never let him see her again.

She stole from the kitchen, running by the side of the house that Jonathan might not see her. She crept swiftly up the path, hid behind bushes.

A Greater Love

Perhaps he had left already. Perhaps he wouldn't want any further goodby. She remembered that he had put his arm about her at the porch; he had whispered: "You're glad, Chickie? Why, you're crying so! Don't—I can't leave you so—"

Maybe he meant that for the parting.

Two or three times the twigs cracked. She got to her feet—shaking. She reached out her hand. No one came.

She listened. But when finally she heard a step and knew that it was he, she sat motionless. Then she heard a voice, anxious, demanding—"Chickie—oh, you hear me—where are you?"

Then she stood up, but she wouldn't raise her head—wouldn't look at him. He sprang to her side. His voice rasped: "Oh—didn't you hear—you frightened me."

Tears shot to her eyes, fell on her hand. And he began talking rapidly, raising her face, wiping it, kissing her lips. The seeking, tender look was in his eyes. "Chickie—is this the way you feel? You want to take it back. You're sorry?"

She couldn't speak. And he listened. "You aren't afraid! Tell me that."

She wanted to know if he was—if he loved her less. But, seeing this new, warm gentleness, she cried anew. She pleaded.

"You'll love me always now? Love me, Barry? You won't forget?"

"Love you, Chickie, dear. More than ever—a thousand times!"

Salt Used in Wash

New calico prints and lace curtains are hard to wash owing to the lime in them, but if you give them a night's soaking in warm water in which two or three handfuls of salt have been dissolved the lime is freed and the task lightened.

Love Promises of Little Aid to the Widow in Need, Says Fay King

By FAY KING.

LATELY several women associated with prominent men have found themselves bereaved of their protector and unprovided for.

No matter how dear they have been known to be to these men, love promises mean nothing in law.

When a man is free to marry and prefers not to, he should at least make it his duty to see that when he is gone the woman in his life is not at the mercy of envious relatives and shrewd lawyers.

A man who has accumulated a fortune knows well the routine of business.

In suggesting future provision, a woman in such a position hazards her present security. The man should be honorable enough to make these arrangements without pressure from her.

But alas! few do!

Mother Graham's Theory Regarding Burglary

MY mother-in-law's knock put an end to my confidential talk with my small son. I knew that even as I put him aside to answer the peremptory rat-tat-tat she had sounded upon the door, Katherine would not have come back until I had summoned her. My father, much as he loved me, would not have disturbed my first meeting with my little lad after the near-tragedy of the night before, but Dicky's august mother had a very keen sense of her own dignity and importance.

She was in a gracious mood, however. I saw that with a quick breath of relief as I swung open the door. Knowing her idiosyncrasies, I had feared that she might deem herself mortally offended by my going to Junior first, instead of paying my respects to her, but the exciting events of the night evidently had so shaken her that she was in no mood for anything save gratitude for the household's escape from tragedy, and pleasure that I had arrived.

"Well, Margaret, it's a good thing you're here," she said as I bent to kiss her. "I suppose Mrs. Bickett has told you about what happened last night."

"Yes, she and Junior," I said with a smile at my small son.

"The blessed lamb!" she said shakily, and then her eyes brimmed.

"If you had seen him, Margaret," she said, "with never a tremor as that awful man held him in front of him and carried him downstairs. I thought the sight would leave my old eyes. I think I must have fainted, although nobody knew anything about it, for when I remembered anything again I was stretched out in a chair in the hall by my door and everybody else was downstairs. But I could hear Richard Second talking, and I knew he was all right, so I didn't worry about the rest of them. They could take care of themselves, the same as I had to."

"But I came upstairs after you, Grannie," Junior interposed with wounded dignity.

"I know you did, my precious," the old lady said. "You didn't forget your old Grannie, if all the rest of them did. But then," with royal and amusing magnanimity, "they all had enough to think about just then without bothering about me. Enough of that. Have you any theory about this thing, Margaret?"

"How could I have, Mother?" I expostulated. "It is all inexplicable to me. There is nothing here at the farmhouse worth the attention on an ordinary thief."

"Ah! But you never can tell me that these were ordinary thieves," my mother-in-law retorted. "They were after some one thing, whatever it was, that they thought was in the house. They wrecked that room that Marion used to have, the one where they got through the window. I suppose they took that one because of that thick wisteria vine. I've told your father he ought to have bars across that window, but he said Marion said it reminded her of a prison. I suppose they'd have treated the other rooms the same way, only they didn't dare go any further when your father came on them. All they thought of then was getting away safely."

"At least that proves they weren't the gunmen we read about," I said with a little shiver, "or else they wouldn't have hesitated to kill any of you."

My mother-in-law nodded sapiently.

"That's true," she assented, "and your father heard one of them say to the other, 'All this for nothing.' So you see they wanted something special. But what? That's the question."

"What, indeed?" I echoed.

"Of course, it's something—some paper or other belonging to Mr. Underwood," my mother-in-law went on surprisingly. "Among all those men he's tracked there must be one or two who got away and would risk a good deal for the evidence he must have filed away against them."

I opened my mouth to voice the objections against this theory which sprang to my mind, but I closed it again quickly. The opinions of Dicky's mother are Median.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Much-Married Women

"GETTING married is the easiest thing in the world!" declares a young divorcee of Omaha, who has just succeeded in detaching her fifth husband.

Well, so is getting a spring cold or getting in jail—but why go on DOING it?

The blessings of this world are very unfairly divided—particularly the husbands. One woman has five or six divorce decrees with which to brighten up her drawing room walls, while another woman hasn't even one old marriage certificate to hang over her kitchen sink! That's life!

Yet, after all, the woman with the marrying habit may not be so much of a varietist as she is an idealist. Nor so much of a temperamentalist as she is an optimist.

Every woman has a deep conviction down at the bottom of her soul that she will, some day, somewhere find the man of her dreams! Given a high ideal and bad judgment, she will go right on hopefully seeking him from the nursery to the grave.

The Paragon she is seeking doesn't inhabit the flesh and golf-knickers. So, she is continually marrying her "Ideal"—and then waking up with a cold shock, to find herself tied to nothing but a Human Being!

And the more of an idealist she is, the worse mess she makes of marriage—and the oftener she makes it.

Every time one "ideal" fades or shrinks in the cold North light of matrimony, she finds another—and imagines that she has matched the glorified pattern of her dreams, at last.

Then she discovers that she has merely exchanged one set of troubles and disappointments for another set.

She divorces a Dobbin who bores her to death—and marries a Don Juan who worries her to death.

She detaches a tightwad with glue in his pockets—and attaches a spendthrift with holes in his pockets. She exchanges a 20-year-old for a 40-year-old—and finds that she still has an "infant" on her hands.

And the astonishing thing is that no matter how many men she has tried and found wanting or married and wrecked—she never fails to find a lot more men eager and willing to go to the operating table and serve as another "experiment."

Nothing daunts a man or ever makes him hesitate to undertake the task of fulfilling all a woman's "ideals." And, the more men a woman has made miserable, the more she can find who seem perfectly confident that THEY can make her happy.

Husbands are like nasturtiums or gray hairs. The more a woman gets rid of and pulls out by the roots, the thicker they come!

It is really no feat to get married—the achievement consists in STAYING married!

The White House Gang

side steps led up to the main entrance.

"I'm not sure," Q said, "but I think it's John Jamerson!"

"All policemen have big feet," Charlie commented.

"No matter," Q said. "Even if it is Jamerson, I can't help it—"

So, with a single thought and a united effort the Gang rolled the snowball—big enough now, for the body of a snowman—along the inside of the balustrade. By dint of tremendous exertion accomplished by much grunting five small boys managed to get the enormous ball up onto the wide shelf of the balustrade, where it wobbled perilously for a moment, and then, of its own weight, decided to balance there.

"I saw him first and the whole thing was my idea," Q said, demanding the honor.

Cop Is Flattened

There could be no argument; besides, we were afraid the policeman might move.

Q, held upright by members of the Gang cradling his feet, placed himself directly behind the snowman, gave it a vigorous push to propel it over and beyond the projecting cornice—and gravity did the rest.

The aim could not fail. It was a straight-down drop, and the huge snowball landed directly on top of the policeman's helmet, and broke into fragments. The officer sat down upon the pavement, and with pronounced finality. His crushed helmet rolled into the gutter of the driveway; his hands clutched at the snow piled about him. We drew in our heads from the balustrade, hugging ourselves, and weeping with joy . . . We had attained the paramount peak of ambition known to boys the world over—we had flattened a cop!

But below, under the porte-cochere, something else and other was happening. There—the first coachman, attired in blue coat, white doeskin trousers, high boots, high hat and all, sitting upon the box and holding the nervous horses in check, and the footman, with his lap-robe ready folded upon his arm—was the President's carriage. At that moment (as thoroughly explained to us later), TR put his foot upon the step, to mount into the carriage. Ther down crashed the great snowball, not 15 feet away, in the sight and hearing of all.

President Not Angry

The horses jumped and lunged. The coachman stood up, and pulling on his reins with all his strength, held them in. The footman, tossing away the lap-robe, clutched at TR. Members of the Staff, at the door, leaped forward to interpose themselves between a startled President and the pavement or to lay him from falling under hoof or wheel . . . There was sudden, confusing and unprecedented interjection, of a vastly disturbing factor into the usually formal and smooth-running drill, of seeing a President of the United States safely onto the cushions of his carriage.

The Gang had its first hint of all this, when a wrathful President, rushing from under the cover of the porte-cochere, assisted a dazed policeman to his feet, then turned, hatless and with eyes blazing in the direction of the balustrade, and shook his knotted fist vigorously. Then, in a voice that must have been heard as far east as the Treasury, and west as far as the State-War-Navy Building, he cried, "You! You! Come down from that roof, at once!" Turning to the Staff under the porte-cochere he cried, "Go and catch them! By George! Let not one escape! Bring them all to me!"

"Father!" Q called down. "Father!"

"Yes," TR responded, "of course . . . Quentin! Quentin!"

"I want to explain," Q went on.

"No explanation received or considered from that height, young man," TR returned. "Come down!"

When we appeared before him—in penitential formation, as aforetime—we were amazed to find him not furiously angry. We imagined him as having the right to be quite as angry as he chose.

"Well," he began, "fortunately for you, you haven't broken his neck—as might well have been expected."

In the greater crime of endangering the President, we had forgotten all about the policeman.

"I'm darn glad, I'll say," remarked Brom with obvious sincerity.

"That's good;" Dick breathed.

Dignity Hurt

"We didn't think of that, sir, honestly," Charlie explained.

"I'll pay for his helmet out of my allowance, father," Quentin offered, with a certain eagerness.

"Don't becloud the issue," TR interrupted.

"Such side-concerns are, virtually, irrelevant. You haven't hurt the officer, luckily, but by George! you've done something quite as reprehensible—you've hurt his dignity in front of me. That policeman had just started to salute, when your ee-normous snowball descended upon him out of the unknown. Think of his amazement! Think of the shock! Think of the humiliation! Think of his chagrin! Finding himself upon the pavement before me, and covered with snow! Think of his feelings! He saw that I saw the whole business, from beginning to end. He saw, even, that I laughed. I shouldn't have done so, of course, but how could I help it? It made me laugh! It was terrible!

"Now, please understand this: Never do anything calculated to hurt another's dignity, unless—unless—you are sure that, beyond the shadow of a doubt, his dignity is an utterly false and foolish thing. Even then, look well to yourselves, first, and try to discover what superior claim you have, to expose his, or anyone's silliness . . . if you do, you will never, never do it. . . .

Correct Manners

Presenting Cards

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am going on a trip.

1—What is the etiquette of card presentation when a gentleman offers his visiting card as a means of introduction? Does the gentleman announce his name when the presentation is made, and does the lady then state her name in acknowledgment?

2—When an older woman offers her card, what is a girl's response? When is an exchange of cards made or given?

READER.

1—There is no etiquette of card presentation, since cards are given and exchanged in this informal and unconventional way only on rare occasions—that is, without introductions. As a matter of fact, this exchange of cards when a girl is traveling is not too wise a procedure, and should be done only with great care and social judgment. Naturally, without the social sponsorship of an introduction, there is no one that assumes responsibility for the acquaintanceship.

2—When an older woman offers her card, a girl may say, for instance, "Thank you so much, Mrs. Rowan. It is very kind of you to give me your card and I shall treasure it."

First Names in Business

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Do you think it proper for a married woman who, going to business, allows an office boy and other men to address her by her first name and not "Mrs.?" I think if they are allowed this privilege, they think it allows them more, and they will lose respect.

J. W.

I AGREE with you, wholeheartedly and enthusiastically. This business woman should have dignity, either native or at least acquired, that there would not be even a possibility of office boys presuming to call her by her first name. For a woman who would allow them to call her by her first name, they certainly would lose respect.

New Table Linen

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am going to give a luncheon and intend to use a green tablecloth and napkins and rose glassware. What I would like to know is, is it proper to use the cloth before having it laundered? MRS. J. A. C.

NO. The table cloth should be laundered. And I am glad to see that you are having such a happy time with your color-consciousness. It is a great joy—isn't it?—to see how we can combine colors and "make them look prettiest" in our table settings.

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

STOCKINGS that are too short produce ingrowing toe nails. Wool stockings, which shrink in the wash, are especially responsible for toe-twinges. It isn't that the nail grows in, it is that the cuticle on the side is pushed toward the nail, forming a heavy thick skin that becomes painful, as a corn is painful. Few women wear stockings large enough for the comfort of their little dogs.

THERE are other methods for reducing thick ankles. Dancing on the toes is one of them. Hanging a pillow in a doorway and kicking it is another. Swinging the foot in a circle from the ankle is a third. The same exercises that reduce fat ankles will fill out thin ones. Exercises bring conditions to normal.

THERE are four causes of obesity—certain diseases, over-eating, eating the wrong food, or not getting enough exercise. Disease is so small a factor it can be marked off. The other causes are one's own doings. Inherited flesh is the most difficult to trim down, but it can be done.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Spring Fever

THIS is the season to get out "in meadow or plain." No matter where you go—in the woods, in the parks, or anywhere in the great out-of-doors. Do this for your health.

DR. COPELAND

When the first warm days of spring appear, the balmy air beckons you forth. This is a time to catch upon the health score. Do you feel listless, without ambition? Do you feel that nothing in the world can possibly "pep you?"

Perhaps you have had a hard winter. It may be that the members of your family have had sickness. Well, now it is all over, and spring is at hand! There is something about the smelly, delightful days of spring that gives you life.

This is the time to take heed of all Nature. Every green thing is an evidence of new vitality. Soon the trees begin to put on a new dress of green. In the country or in the parks, there is the smell of the earth, the rushing of streams, the last melting spots of snow.

Did you ever visit the mountains at this season? One such day comes to my mind—a day in my own home mountains in April. The season was a little late. After days of sparkling cold but bright sunshine, the first warm day appeared. Rivulets of water from melting snow gave way to rushing streams. The trees of the mountainsides burst forth in a day, almost, in pastel shades of green. I feel sorry for one who has never seen the mountains in spring.

This is the time of the year to take stock of your health.

Be out-of-doors all you possibly can. Make your walks sprightly and gay. If you are a city dweller, be out on the avenue or get out into the parks in the sunshine.

How the babies enjoy these spring days in the park! Grown-ups and children mingle with the crowds in the fresh air and sun. We lack sunshine so much in winter that there is the greater need now.

Perhaps you will arrange to go on that fishing trip you have thought of for so long. A day, or a week-end away in the country can do much to add to your store of health. Your outlook on life will be changed. Everybody who can should enjoy every moment possible out-of-doors.

After the winter months of hard work or strenuous social engagements, when most persons have held to a rather heavy diet, a change to lighter foods should be made at this season. Not so much food is needed in the warmer months. Eat plenty of the leafy vegetables and fresh fruits.

Every chance for good health is yours if you will use intelligent care. Make it a rule in these few months to build for health, to build up reserve energy, and have all the relaxation and recreation possible. Look out for your teeth, have a physical examination to see if you are fit, and then enjoy life!

BUCS BATTLE BEAUMONT

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Pitt's Best Floor Year.
Advance of Basketball.
Blair Crowding Bell.
Bucs' Unlucky Spring.
Red Line-Up Uncertain.
Heavy Title Match.

61,646 SEE PANTHERS PLAY 25 GAMES

THE University of Pittsburgh enjoyed its greatest basketball season, from the attendance angle during the campaign recently ended. The Panther floormen showed their stuff before an aggregate of 61,646 spectators, in a total of 25 games, or an average of about 2,466 per contest. In 11 home games at the Stadium Pavilion, Dr. H. C. Carlson's Phantoms attracted a total of 22,846, or an average of 2,077 per game, and in 14 games away from home they drew a total of 38,800 floor enthusiasts, or an average of 2,771 per game.

Dr. H. C. Carlson.

Pitt's home tilts and the 19 high school contests in the W. P. I. A. L. elimination series at The Stadium were witness by 65,846 fans. That's an average attendance of practically 2,200 at each college and high school game played at The Stadium during the season.

It was the most successful year, financially, that Pitt has ever had, and the figures attest a steady growth in the popularley of basketball as a college athletic attraction.

TIME was when college basketball, along with track, swimming, lawn tennis, and other sports less popular than football, depended upon the gridiron receipts to foot the bills and pay expenses. During the last three years, however, Pitt basketball teams have more than paid their own way. Credit for this naturally goes to Dr. Carlson, one of the country's outstanding coaches, though the interest in college basketball has been increasing rapidly in a general sense.

It has been pointed out frequently that showmanship has a definite place in college athletics. In football, at least, college sport has become "big business," and the teams that are piling up profits for their alma maters are the ones that have dash and color, supplied either by spectacular players or spectacular coaches. Dr. Carlson is a showman and his teams are "show" teams. They give the customers what the latter want, and the customers are willing to pay for it.

FROM the camp of the Chicago Cubs come reports of a possible revision of Manager Joe McCarthy's infield plans for the 1930 pennant race as a result of the fine showing that Clarence Vick Blair has been making at third base in the practice games.

When Lester Bell was lifted from the lineup recently, partly because of a sore arm, Blair was sent to take his place, and the substitute has been coming through in such fine style that it is rumored McCarthy may keep him there.

Clarence Blair.

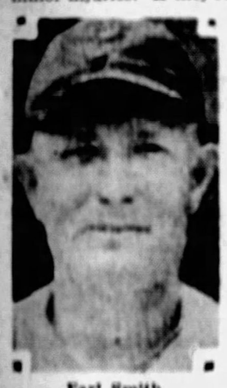
BLAIR has left nothing to be desired in his work thus far. His fielding has been brilliant, he has shown speed on the bases and he has been hitting the ball hard to all fields. The fact that he is a left-hand hitter would make him a helpful factor in the Cub batting order, where Charley Grimm is the regular swinging from the south side. It is figured he would make an ideal man to hit second in the new order, which is not very promising with the slow Grimm in notch No. 2. With Blair hitting second it would be possible for McCarthy to drop Grimm to his old place at No. 7 and thus avoid splitting the club's speed.

LAST year Blair figured in 26 games for the Cubs, playing nine at third base, and turned in a batting average of .319. It would spell quite an upset of Cub speculations if he were to capture the third-base job, as Bell was specially purchased from the Braves to fill that position and represents a big outlay of money after months of dickering.

However, there may be a change between now and opening day. Many a youngster looks brilliant in the spring because an older player trying for the same post has not yet found himself, but eventually it often happens that the pendulum swings in the other direction by the time the pennant race begins. Bell may be heard from later when his arm has recovered, and is not yet to be counted out of the Cub line-up.

IF baseball luck evens itself up during a season, as it is popularly supposed to do, the Pirates ought to enjoy a lot of smooth sailing during the regular campaign to balance the bad breaks they have been getting in the training period.

No other club in either major league has been as unfortunate as the Bucs this spring, Dick Bartell being the third of the seven regular players to be put out of commission, not to mention numerous minor injuries. If they're all fit for the start, however, as seems probable, there will be no cause for grumbling at the fates. As President Dreyfuss says, "it's far better to have the casualties pile up now than at a time when they would mean the loss of real ball games."



Earl Smith.

EARL SMITH, former Pirate catcher with the Cardinals, handed this one to the reporters in the Redbird training camp: "Christy Mathewson was the greatest pitcher I ever caught. I'll never forget the thrill I got when I was told by Manager McGraw after I joined the Giants that I was to catch Mathewson. I was scared for the first time in my life. I learned that afternoon that great pitchers do not bear down all the time, but let the fielders work. Mathewson was master of that. He seemed to know just where the ball was going to be hit and threw it so that the batter would have to put it where Christy wanted it to go.

"IN the pinches, Matty used his arm, otherwise he worked on the batter's weakness. 'Just catch the balls that the batter's don't hit,' he told me. 'I'll do the signaling.' I was the catcher for a pitcher then; nowadays a backstop has to be the pitcher for the pitcher."

All of which would be a swell story but for the trivial detail that Smith never caught Mathewson. Earl didn't join the Giants until three years after Matty left. It was in 1919 that Smith went to the Giants from Rochester, whereas Mathewson, along with Bill McKechnie and Eddie Roush, was traded by New York to Cincinnati for Buck Herzog and Wade Killefer on July 20, 1916.

THE Cincinnati club will show more changes than any other in the major loops, but Manager Dan Howley is still undecided as to how he will place the old and new players at his disposal. This applies to the outfield, in particular.

There is a chance now that Curt Walker will be found in center field. It looked for a time as if there might be no regular berth for

BUFFALO TEAM SCORES 2976, TAKES LEAD

CLEVELAND, April 2.—Numerous chunks of the $100,000 prize melon of the American Bowling Congress annual tournament were sliced off by New Philadelphia, O., Alliance, O., Huntington, W. Va., Massillon, O., and Titusville, Pa., pinsters yesterday.

Massillon and New Philadelphia were neck-and-neck in making the greatest inroads. The former produced two pairs in the money, they being L. Tracy and J. Fischer with 1,161 and A. Hesse and R. Hudleston with 1,143.

New Philadelphia hung up a feature count of 1,215 this being made by P. Kaelin and P. Deberko. C. Toomey and E. Collins of that city will cash with their 1,181, as will J. Rosch and A. Dessecker with a 1,156.

Huntington had two paying doubles pairs in W. Harding and R. Wright with 1,183 and C. Dozier and J. Reid with 1,161.

HIGH SCORES CASH IN

Massillon pounded the sticks into prize-winning submission in the singles as eight select class 600 series were shot. F. Chornan getting 632, R. Kirby 620, L. Tracy 617, H. Silverthorne, 615, P. Sonnhalter, 614, J. Berens 604, R. Troxel 601 and T. David 602.

The 607 of T. Dozier and 597 of W. Harding of Huntington will cash in, as will the 614 of G. Kimmel, the 590 of T. Conybeer and 590 of E. Collins of New Philadelphia.

Alliance claim to fame came through the 1,170 of S. Perdue and C. Whitaker in the doubles and the 602 and 594 of G. Stromp and A. Strain, in the singles.

Best among yesterday's Pittsburgh rollers were C. Martin and W. Martin, who hung up 1,091 in the doubles, and J. Haefele, who had 565 in the singles.

NEW TEAM LEADER

Buffalo mounted to first place in the team event, when the De Veho quintet hammered out a 2,976.

The Buffalo five opened with a 952, came back with 968 and closed with 1,056. The Quale Garage team of Buffalo also had a fine chance to get up in the lead, opening with 992 and following with 997, but stumbled in the third game and ended with 939 for a total of 2,928. It placed the Quales in thirteenth position.

NEW MURRYSVILLE GOLF CLUB OPENS SOON

SEMI-PRIVATE LINKS GROUNDS ARE IDEAL

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

A brand new course, that of the Murrysville Golf Club, will be opened for play officially shortly before Decoration Day. It is a club almost entirely new to Western Pennsylvania golfdom, because it is of a different type, and it bids well to go over in a big way. For the present, the Murrysville Golf Club will operate on a semi-private basis, according to James Noble, who has succeeded in putting the club over, although it is hoped the organization will be handed into a private club before many years have come and gone.

The Murrysville course, near the little town of that name on the William Penn highway, off to the left going east, has some of the finest golfing land in Western Pennsylvania, and there's no kidding about that. District golfers will take to it like a duck does to water, for the general topography of the 104 acres now being utilized for a nine-hole layout, and the additional ground to be used for a second nine holes, making 18 in all, is ideal to the game of golf. There are no steep grades on any part of the course, and the greater portion is given to comparatively level, rolling ground that will give zest to the game and at the same time see to it that the players do not become physically exhausted.

BEAUTIFUL LAYOUT

And in the summer, playing conditions at Noble's course will be most picturesque. A woodland hill, which might well be called a small mountain, and a babbling, winding creek, bound the layout on one side, while country land, with grain and orchards, are on the other side. The Golf Club is located on a newly-paved road, and quite accessible.

The course is not intended as a championship test, so therefore the holes will not be made so strenuous that the average golfer cannot enjoy a real round of the game. It is to be constructed primarily for the enjoyment of the average golfer—but it will not detract one iota from the course as it has been planned by Noble. Several beautiful holes are in the making, especially the third, which runs parallel to the creek, with a mountainous wooded background, very similar to Thornburg's second hole.

MEMBERSHIPS REASONABLE

Many offers have been made Noble by various syndicates interested in taking over the layout, but he has turned them down for the very good reason that the Murrysville Golf Club already has made a big hit, although it is still in its rough stage.

Memberships have been made so reasonable that the average workingman can play at Murrysville without hurting his pocketbook. Although the price will be raised as the course is improved, the first year's fee is only $25, and a limit of 200 members is to be set, it is reported, for the first year. Almost 100 are already signed up, among them a man of much prominence in Murrysville, P. M. Sloan, who is a member at the Edgewood Country Club. Sloan is said to be enthusiastic over the prospects for the new club.

Transient golfers also may play at Murrysville, under the semi-private plan, and tourists and others wishing to try out the course will be able to do so for a reasonable fee; even clubs may be hired for the occasion.

INSTALL LOCKERS

Members will begin playing the course around May 1, but others will not be permitted on the layout until after the date of official opening. Eight of the nine holes to be used this year are well under way. Locker-rooms are being installed in the temporary clubhouse, and when the season opens members will be able to procure food and other service if they desire it. If properly handled, and indications are at this time that it is such, the Murrysville Golf Club should be a real success.

Tee to Green

Uncle John W. Carr, secretary-treasurer of the Pittsburgh Field Club, and one of the most popular golfers in the district, by none, fails in of the praises of Clyde Thursby, who played the role of spectator in the play "Fore Through" which showed here recently. Thursby wrote Uncle John, after playing the Field Club, as follows:

"Dear Mr. Carr: First allow me to thank you for the privilege of playing what I consider one of the most beautiful natural courses I have ever had the pleasure of playing on. I have played on more than 1,500 different courses all over the English-speaking world, also in France and Germany and your layout, I can safely say, will linger long in my memory. I hope to have the pleasure of playing your course in the season.—Dave Thursby.

Martin and Mrs. Eberhardt are doing well at the Nemacolin Country Club and anticipate a big club season.

Harry Cooper played "unattached" to the Southeastern open which finished yesterday. It must be that he has severed his relations with his club in Buffalo.

Col. Franklin Blackstone, local S. A. E. golfer, predicts Bob Hambleton, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, will have one of his biggest years in golf this season.

Vince Eldred, pro at Highland, scored 248 in the Southeastern open at Augusta before he withdrew.

The opening of the new Bob-O-Link driving range in Aspinwall and the South Hills yesterday was rather messed up by rainy weather.

Sport Vignettes

Ever hear the old one about Jim Corbett meeting a pal who asked solicitously about Jim's operation? . . . "Oh, it turned out all right," said Jim . . . "By the way, what did they take out of you?" from the pal . . . "My appendix," from Jim . . . "That's funny," said the pal, "I thought they took out Bob Fitzsimmons' glove" . . . And then there was the crack by Jess Carver after Monday night's fight at Motor Square Garden that he always knew it would take a Goodman to beat Johnny Mellow . . . James (Red) Mason, believe it or not, has turned author . . . His latest screed consists of a handbill about Jackie Rodgers that he is disseminating around the fight clubs . . . Of course, it contains nothing but boosts for rival boxers . . . It seems that a phoney report telephoned here shortly before the Goodman fight Monday night that Mellow's 4-year-old son had been killed by an automobile truck in Detroit was the dirty work of some enemies of Mellow and his manager in Detroit . . . A fine sense of revenge those fellows have . . . Jack Sharkey must be kicking himself around after hearing about Jack Gagnon, a fellow-Bostonian, knocking out Tuffy Griffiths in Philadelphia the other night . . . Sharkey turned down Tuffy cold as his opponent at Miami in favor of Phil Scott because Griffiths looked as tough as his name implied . . . And look at the mess he got into with Philip! . . . With Pie Traynor out with bad eyes, Lloyd Waner not yet recovered from his operation and Dick Bartell out with a Jackie Rodgers (slang for bum ankle), not to mention Burleigh Grimes among the missing, the Pirates look like a sure-fire pennant contender with the opening of the season two weeks away . . . The good things always look bad at the start, and vice versa . . . In Indianapolis, the preliminary boxers go two-minute rounds and give the fans a bigger kick in the way of action for their money.—HARRY KECK.

NO. 8—THE PIVOT

The hardest play in the infield is making the pivot on a double play. More second basemen and shortstops are weak on that play than on anything else. And it's an important one, too.

The first thing necessary is that the second baseman and shortstop understand each other. Some infielders like to take the throw on the inside corner of the bag, some like it on the outside corner. Some like a high throw, others like one at the waist. Those are things which the players must settle upon between themselves.

The secret of making the pivot play successfully, of course, is to touch up the bag in such a manner as to be in perfect position for the throw.

In the picture you will see that Ed has come in to take the throw and tagged the bag and is ready to complete the double play with the same motion with which he touched up on the bag. Mac, who is taking the part of the baserunner, has slid into the bag, but you will note that he slid straight in. A hook slide would have bumped Ed and thrown him off balance.

Mac, had he been a wise old head at the sliding game, when he saw he was going to be forced, would have used the hook slide to try to break up the double play. Good baserunners can break up a double play time after time by hook-sliding.

Nine times out of 10 the success or failure of the double play depends not so much on the man who makes the pivot as on the man who starts the play with the first throw. Any second baseman, if he is given the ball properly, can get it away in a hurry, but nine times out of 10 if the throw isn't properly made the double play goes blooey.

The answer, of course, is simply this: Let the second baseman and shortstop understand each other's playing style perfectly and let them have an understanding as to how each man likes the throws made. One of the best double play combinations I ever saw was Bucky Harris and Roger Peckinpaugh when they were with Washington, and I've heard each of them say dozens of times that the success of their double plays came entirely because each was able to throw the other the ball in the place he wanted it.

FRIDAY—HOW TO THROW A CURVE.

Perry, Duke Gridder, Dies In Hospital

DURHAM, N. C., April 2.—(AP.)—O. Blaine Perry, 21, of Bluefield, Va., who collapsed Monday after participating in spring football practice at Duke University stadium, died yesterday at a hospital here following a cerebral hemorrhage.

Attending physicians said Perry, a sophomore, died as the result of an existing weakness, probably a tumor, that must have been of long duration. No evidence of external injury could be found, they said.

Coach W. E. Tilson, a brother-in-law of Perry, said the youth gave no evidence of physical distress during the practice.

PENN OPPOSES SCHNEIDERS FOR TITLE

By JULIUS LEVIN

The championship of the West Penn League, the outstanding amateur basketball circuit in the tri-state district, will be decided in the spacious Duquesne University gym tonight when the Ray E. Schneiders, of the North Side, and the Penn Five, of Sharpsburg, clash in the final contest of their playoff series.

The Ray Schneiders are the winners of the first half title, while the Penn Five copped the laurels in the second half. In the present post-season engagement the Penn Five won the decision in the first battle at Forresters Hall, Lawrenceville, and the Schneiders triumphed in the second contest, staged on the Sharpsburg High School floor.

EVENLY MATCHED

The two clubs are evenly matched and their supporters are anticipating a neck-and-neck skirmish tonight. Both teams boast large followings and a capacity crowd is expected to attend the closing battle.

Two preliminary games will precede the main attraction, the first starting at 7:15 and the second an hour later. The W. U. Hoyles and Mt. Washington Triangles will clash in the second, assuring the fans of a fast contest as the two teams rank with the best in their class.

After considerable wrangling over the site on which to play the third and final battle of the playoff series, St. John's and St. Joseph's Lyceums finally have consented to stage the championship game on the Duquesne University court next Friday night at 9:10, following a preliminary tussle between the reserve quintets of the two organizations.

St. John's won the first game staged on the St. Joseph's floor, while St. Joseph's evened the count when they invaded St. John's floor for the second fray. The two teams include in their lineups the cream of basketball players on the South Side, and they should present an interesting struggle for the cup being offered the winner by Dr. L. G. Beinhauer, president of the league. The first two games drew capacity crowds and indications are that Friday's game also will tax the spacious Duke floor.

Kaye Don Postpones Auto Speed Test

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., April 2.—(AP.)—Indefinite postponement of his attempt to lower the world automobile speed record was announced yesterday by Kaye Don, British racing champion.

Don said indications were that the beach would not be in condition for superspeed for possibly a week or longer.

Meanwhile, he has ordered his mechanics to reduce the gear ratio in his Sunbeam Silver Bullet car, which he said would add considerably to his speed. He added that unless conditions became favorable within a week or so he would ship his great automobile back to England.

THE WORLD'S FASTEST GAME

In Havana, they advertise Jai Alai as the world's fastest game.

According to tradition, Cortez found the Aztecs playing this pastime in Mexico and took the game back to Spain with him. The ball, however, was so hard that it played havoc with the hands of the players, so when the Basques took it up they wore wicker gloves, which since have evolved into a sort of wicker basket. Today, Spanish frontons (courts) exist all over the world. There is no doubt that it is a fast game; particularly does the pelota, or ball, attain a terrific speed.

Knute Rockne.

The players themselves move faster than in handball or basketball, but not nearly so fast as a hockey player. Even the hockey puck sometimes moves with fully the speed of the pelota in Jai Alai.

So when it comes to the world's fastest game, hockey will have to be considered a shade ahead of the fanciful sport which still is the highlight at all merry festivals in Andalusia.

tennis candidates in the history of the school, 17 Duquesne University wielders of the racquet held their first practice of the 1930 season on the Bluff courts this afternoon. Coach Paul G. Sullivan and Advisory Coach Grant Siverd have called an early practice session in order that the Dukes may get adequate preparation for the 15 matches which will compose their season.

Only three members of last year's tennis squad are now available to Coach Sullivan. The veteran aces, Pete Collodi and Sam Kellar, graduated last June, and the Dukes now have as a nucleus for this season Andy Smeaton, third-year man, who was elected captain; Bill Smeaton, brother of Andy, and Regis Bullion, both the latter two being sophomores.

All of the dates for the Duke matches are not definitely set as yet. The six matches assigned, in addition to two matches each with Westminster College, Meadville, Allegheny, George Washington University and one with the University of Baltimore, follow:

April 29, Waynesburg, at Pittsburgh; May 7, Geneva, at Pittsburgh; May 12, Bethany, at Bethany; May 22, Waynesburg, at Waynesburg; May 24, Bethany, at Pittsburgh; May 26, Geneva, at Beaver Falls.

The Tipoff

Do You Know THAT:

There will be a change in the personnel of the publicity bureau of one of our local institutions of learning before very long?

A former Pitt and a former Tech star is being considered for the football coaching job at Shady Side Academy, and that the issue is a standoff at present?

Gibby Welch is dickering with V. P. I. for the job vacated by Andy Gustafson and stands a good chance of landing the position?

A lot of folks at football games don't know whether the ball is blown up or stuffed.

N. B. A. DROPS WRESTLING PLANS

CINCINNATI, April 2.—(AP.)—The National Boxing Association, which last August included wrestling under its jurisdiction, late yesterday said heavyweight wrestlers have blocked all plans for honest competition and washed its hands of further attempts to clean up the heavyweight wrestling game.

Stanley M. Isaacs, N. B. A. president, said:

"Heavyweight wrestling factions desire and intend to continue using unsuitable contestants, matched under secret arrangements and ballyhoo conditions similar to the chaotic condition which has existed in this wrestling class for five years."

As a result of the investigation, Col. F. J. Landry, Friars Point, Miss., chairman of the wrestling championship committee, announced heavyweight wrestlers, their promoters and all heavyweight wrestling interests immediately were barred from recognition in N. B. A. territory.

Hartnett Catches Balls From Blimp

LOS ANGELES, April 2.—Gabby Hartnett, Cub star, yesterday demonstrated that no pop foul ever will be hit so high that he can't catch it. Before the game with the Angels started, the Goodyear blimp Volunteer sailed over Wrigley Field and Hartnett was ready with his glove to catch balls to be dropped from the ship.

A dozen balls were dropped from a height of 800 feet and Gabby snared two of them. When the blimp was lowered to 650 feet, Truck Hannah, the Angels' backstop, caught one of a half dozen dropped to him.

BILLY SCHOLES

Scholes is the North Side junior-lightweight boxer, who has returned to the ring after an absence of several years and taken the fans by storm in scoring two victories over Peaches Gallagher and one over U. S. Carpentier. He fractured a rib in his bout with Carpentier last Friday night and will be kept idle for some weeks. He is popularly referred to by the fans as "Muscle Shoals."

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

tains the Pittsburgh athletes and scribes when they reach that big town. I heard Hap let go with a good one when he was talking to Bill Hinchman and Chick Fraser. You see the Pirate scouts have a fine friend in Jack Doyle, the old firstsacker who now scouts for the Cubs. Jack felt so good after the Cubs won the pennant he made a trip to Ireland. Hap told Bill and Chick that the last reports on Jack was that he was in the North of Ireland looking for a good left-hander.

It made me feel kind of sick to see Andy Bednar going so good, and me, out of the same kind of a league, not being able to do a thing for the team. But Jewel says he's gonna keep me around for awhile to hold the boys in good humor. Paul Waner was telling me that Jewel likes that fast ones I pull, so I'm off the worrying stuff.

As soon as the old whip gets better I'll show something on the field. Jewel keeps askin' me, "how's the old arm, Lefty?" but I know now he is jes giving me the needles.

Terrific drives coupled with accurate approach shots and putting gave Maureen Orcutt, of Haworth, N. J., the tournament medalist, a 4 and 2 victory over Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City.

QUICK KNOCKOUT

ALLENTOWN, Pa., April 2.—(INS.)—The knockout of Johnny Cannonet, Alpha, N. J., junior lightweight, here last night within 40 seconds after the opening of the first round of his bout with Ray Miller, Chicago lightweight, was recorded today as one of the quickest knockouts on record in an Allentown ring. Outclassed from the very start, Cannonet never had a chance. A stiff left hook to the stomach and a right to the jaw put him down and out.

Horton Smith Flys From Golf Test To Keep Date

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 2.—(AP.)—J. Bothwell Lee, local manager for Southern Airways, Inc., announced last night he had received a telegram from Pilot Aery of the air line saying he landed in Washington at 6 p. m. with Horton Smith, young Cragston, N. Y., golfer, who competed in the Southeastern Open Tournament which closed here yesterday.

Smith had an engagement in Boston today and agreed to play here only after air transportation from here to Washington was arranged for him. He planned to take a train from Washington for the Massachusetts city.

DAVE McKAY,
Pittsburgh Field Club.

Unlucky as it may sound, Dave McKay, Pittsburgh Field Club pro, and time-honored secretary of the Tri-State Professional Golfers' Association, has been affiliated with the Aspinwall club exactly 13 years. Another of the noted orthodox Carnoustie clan of golfers, McKay started to play golf in this country 22 years ago, coming from Scotland to the Allegheny Country Club, as assistant to Fred Brand, in 1908. Dave was the first professional at the Butler Country Club and at the former Bellevue Country Club, now Highland, and also served the Country Club of Pittsburgh. He won the West Penn open championship in 1919 and was runner-up to Emil (Dutch) Loefler, of Oakmont, in the State open in 1924. McKay is a noted instructor throughout the country, and is a menace in any tournament in which he competes.—VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Chillysauce

The Pirates stopped at many a Wild West Texas town as they hurried back from the coast. At one of the apparently forsaken spots in the wastelands, the athletes stepped off the train to limber up.

"I have an uncle around this town who makes quite a lot of money," remarked Larnion Cox, Ft. Worth recruit with the Bucs. "He is an expert on windmills." And he was not jesting.

Water is so scarce that the windmill system is used to prevent dire suffering in the cattle herds.

The vacancy will be filled by Roland MacKenzie, who was named as first alternate at the time the team was selected.

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP.)—The skirmish for the twelfth national high school basketball championship was tinged liberally with Southern hardwood artistry as the second section of a large field from 26 scattered states drove forward to complete the first round games at the University of Chicago today.

Linsly Academy, of Wheeling, W. Va., which upset the big Reagan High team of Houston, Tex., 33 to 20; Lakeland, Fla., winner over Chelsea, Mass., 28 to 25, in the most exciting game of the early games, and Spartansburg, S. C., victor over Rexburg, Idaho, were favorites.

Eight first round and two second round matches were on today's program, the feature of which will be that between Athens and Lankin, a team of Giants from North Dakota. Yesterday's Linsly lineup:

LINSLY—33.		REAGAN—20.
Moore	F	Baker
Luther	F	Krvil

BOXING fans throughout the country often have objected to attempts on the part of the New York Boxing Commission to set itself up as the ruling power of the entire fistic world and to have its rulings on champions and champions accepted as the official and final decrees. However, the Queensberry solons of the Empire State will find all Fistiana willing to go along, for once, in its recognition of the proposed Jack Sharkey-Max Schmeling fight at the Yankee Stadium in New York on June 12 as one for the world heavyweight championship. There can be no question as to the right of this match, the feature event of New York's big annual Milk Fund charity show, to be called a title affair. Sharkey and Schmeling are the outstanding two heavyweights, and admittedly the leaders in ability as well as in position, now before the public, they have fought their way to the places they occupy, and there is no good reason why the winner should not be recognized everywhere as the new champion.*

Horton Smith Flys From Golf Test To Keep Date

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 2.—(AP.)—J. Y., golfer, who competed in the Southeastern Open Tournament which closed here yesterday.

Smith had an engagement in Boston today and agreed to play here only after air transportation from here to Washington was arranged for him. He planned to take a train from Washington for the Massachusetts city.

"THE DUCHESS OF CHICHESTER'S GOAT CART!"

BAWLED BERTRAM the BOUNCER

"My man," reproved the Duchess, "it is seldom that I speak directly to a menial, but those rasping, grinding tones were more fitting for peddling fish than announcing my coach-and-four."

"A thousand pardons, Milady," replied Bertram humbly, "but what am I to do?"

"Smoke OLD GOLDS, fellow! The honey-smooth heart-leaf tobacco will change your growls of a grizzly to the amorous cooings of a pretty pigeon. Throat-ease follows this smoother and better cigarette as hounds follow the scent. Away with you, and OLD GOLD yourself! There's not a bark in a billion."

STOCKS TURN IRREGULAR AT CLOSE

Trading, Heavy Earlier in Session, Slows Up When Prices Become Confused

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP.)—Trading on the New York Stock Exchange continued at a record-breaking pace today, with the market showing increasing irregularity but with the bullish forces still in control of the price movement. Flurries of selling swept through the market at frequent intervals but new leaders were quickly brought forward, and the general level of prices invariably worked higher. Total sales crossed the 2,500,000-share mark by midday, with the ticker running more than half an hour behind the market in the early afternoon.

Heavy profit-taking was appear in many issues today in anticipation of a large increase in Federal Reserve brokers' loans tomorrow, "bear" traders stubbornly opposed the advance in many issues, but they caused only temporary setbacks.

LARGE BLOCKS SOLD

While public participation has been showing a large increase in volume, some of the large commission houses report that small speculators are not being loaded up with stocks, due to extensive switching of commitments. Transfer of numerous blocks of 5,000 to 25,000 shares in the last few days is believed to be due, in part, to buying of strong financial interests, presumably for the account of investment trusts.

The day's business news did not furnish much ammunition for speculators for the advance. Freight car loadings in the week ended March 22 totaled only 875,542 cars, a drop of 5,645 below the preceding week and a reduction of 86,858 cars below the corresponding week of 1929.

STEEL OUTPUT GAINS

The Iron Age review reported a moderate upturn in steel output, but explained that no sharp rebound in activity was looked for and indicated that some producers believed that the industry would do well to maintain its recent gains.

Pig iron output increased about 3 per cent in March, the daily average being the largest since November. The American Petroleum Institute reported a decline of 21,700 barrels in the daily average of crude oil production last week.

Radio, in which a large short interest is reported to have developed, was again a strong feature in today's market, crossing 58 to a new peak price for the year.

Oil and gas shares were less active, and mostly moved in narrow ranges.

Industrials and specialties were highly irregular.

Intermittent selling of such market leaders as United States Steel, American Telephone and American Can, which were down several points, failed to influence the demand for other representative shares. General Electric sold at 88, Electric Power and Light at 99, and Coca Cola at 187, all new high figures. Trading slowed up considerably when the price movement became confused. The closing tone was irregular. Total sales approximated 5,300,000 shares.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 2.—Cotton opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 5 points under realizing, combined with some local and foreign selling, which was probably prompted by the relatively easy Liverpool cables. Old crop positions were relatively easy, selling about 13 to 14 points net lower with May declining to 16.35, while new crop months showed net losses of 5 to 7 points. Trade buying on the setback brought in a renewal of covering by old crop shorts, however, while there seemed to be some trade and commission house buying of the new crop months and the market held very steady at the close of the first half hour, with prices showing net declines of about 4 to 8 points.

Liverpool cables reported continental buying supplied by realizing, with the demand for cloth irregular, and said that home trade in cotton goods was improving, with moderate sales of cloth to the continent.

Trading was quieter late in the morning. Offerings became comparatively light after the early selling had run its course and prices rallied on renewed covering by near month shorts, with May selling up from 16.33c to 16.44c and the new October from 16.33c to 16.44c and the new October from 16.33c to 16.44c and the new October

STEEL OUTPUT EXPANDING

NEW YORK, April 2.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

Pig iron production in March, in contrast with the decline in steel ingot output, increased 3,060 tons a day, or 3 per cent, according to preliminary estimates telegraphed to the Iron Age. Total production for the month was 3,237,950 tons and the daily average was 104,450 tons, compared with 2,838,920 tons and 101,390 tons, respectively, in February. The daily rate is the highest since last November and compared with 119,822 tons for March a year ago.

Eight blast furnaces were lighted in March and four were put out, a net gain of four. The increase in active capacity is in keeping with the current upward trend in steel works output. The steel ingot output of Steel Corporation subsidiaries has risen to 83 per cent, and the average for the country at large has advanced to 78 per cent, compared with 76 per cent a week ago.

Expanding demand for line pipe from the larger oil and gas companies, large structural steel inquiries, a more cheerful outlook in the automobile industry and a further moderate increase in steel specifications from miscellaneous sources have raised the hopes of the mills. But no sharp rebound in activity is looked for; on the contrary, some producers, doubtless influenced in their views by the hand-to-mouth character of buying and the persistence of price unsettlement, believe that the industry will do well to hold its recent gains.

Taking into account a possible contraction of trading in heavy-rolled products, indications of expanding demand for lighter products are gratifying. Only a recovery of automobile manufacture is necessary to bring sheet output within striking distance of capacity.

Finished steel prices have undergone further reductions. An increase in pipe discounts, equivalent to a reduction of $4 a ton, is the first general revision of the prices of tubular goods since April 19, 1923. To a large extent the new quotation represents an open recognition of widespread recent concessions.

Rail Query Brings I.C.C. Committe Here

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Chairman Parker of the House Interstate Commerce Committee announced that a sub-committee would go to New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and probably to Chicago and Boston in the fall in connection with the investigation into railroad holding and investment trust companies.

Plans for hearings in the investigation will be formulated after Joseph B. Eastman, a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission completes his testimony before the committee," Parker said.

Eastman is to be the initial witness in the inquiry when hearings open Saturday.

Reserve Board, Not Wall Street, Deserves Blame

By B. C. FORBES

THE Federal Reserve Board was wrong. New York and Boston bankers were right.

That was demonstrated by events. Only now is the disclosure made that directors of the reserve banks in these cities repeatedly petitioned the Reserve Board for permission to increase the discount rate last spring and that they were thwarted by the Washington authorities. Had the bankers been allowed to hoist the warning signal, the wild boom in stock speculation would not have continued quite so gaily and recklessly months longer.

Revealing of the clash throws blame squarely upon the shoulders of the Reserve Board members. Their overruling and overriding of the best-informed bankers in the East—they may have similarly treated leading bankers in other reserve cities for all we know — is rather astounding. Why is it that when ordinary citizens are given a political job and official title they promptly swell up and become obsessed with the conceit that they have become vastly superior to other mortals?

It apparently didn't occur to the Reserve Board gentlemen that among those recommending the raising of the cost of money to speculators were men successfully filling business positions infinitely more important and responsible than any they themselves had ever come within miles of attaining.

Red lights against the break-neck stock boom were repeatedly swung in this column. It required no superior intelligence to foresee that the longer the madness continued and the more violent it became the more disastrous its inevitable crash would prove, not merely to gamblers, but to industry and business and employment all over the country. Had the rediscount rates been jacked-up sufficiently vigorously, the brakes would have been applied earlier and the smash-up consequently would have been less catastrophic.

As it is, everybody has been made to suffer—most of all those least responsible for the gambling mania, breadwinners who have since been plunged into the indescribable misery of enforced idleness.

Instead of hereafter blaming "Wall Street bankers" for what happened, remember that their effort to impose greater restraint was frustrated by Washington.

THE head of one of our greatest automobile companies, when asked for a straight-from-the-shoulder statement on conditions, said to me yesterday:

"Although I can't say that there are any particularly definite signs of improvement in business, nevertheless I feel confident that there is going to be in a relatively short time, and if all of us feel that way, it will go a long distance towards making it an accomplished fact. I hope in the near future."

That, frankly, is how a good many high-ups really feel—which is somewhat different from what some of them say when talking for quotation. Actual recovery in industry and general business has not yet gone notably far.

CONGER REYNOLDS, Standard Oil Company, of Indiana, commenting approvingly on what was said in this column the other day about stock ownership by employes, furnishes these facts:

"Under our company's first employe stock purchase plan, of five years' duration, 384,638 shares were distributed; under the second (three-year) plan, 238,087 were distributed, and the third plan, now in force, had 16,757 participants on December 31, and approximately 60,000 shares are being distributed to them at the close of the first year of this operation, March 31, 1930.

"Of the stock distributed under the first and second plans 470,070 shares (approximately 75 per cent of the total subscribed) are still held by the employes. This is employe participation in the company not only by executives, but all the way down the line. There seems no doubt of its benefits both to employes and the company."

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who is extensively interested in this company, told me years ago that he was scouring the earth for the best profit-sharing system. No absolutely ideal plan has yet been discovered and generally adopted, but an increasing number of companies have formulated plans which have satisfactorily fitted their needs.

Perhaps this brief recital of Standard Oil of Indiana's success will encourage other corporations to share profits with those who help to earn them.

ENCOURAGING: During the decade prior to 1914 only 10 per cent (in value) of United States foreign trade was carried in United States vessels. During the last decade the share of American ships was 35 per cent.

And it is going to be still larger. American shipowners are now receiving effective backing by the government and are confidently formulating highly important expansion plans. Expect mergers.

BUSINESS and the public would gladly vote for a tariff on tariff talk by Washington tariff-tinkerers — but not ad valorem!

HIGH finance is prepared for rather wet weather before April ends — something more than light April showers.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Unfilled industrial orders, criterion of business conditions and out look, were larger at the end of February than at the end of January this year, or February, 1929.

Increases in orders for transportation equipment and lumber were sufficient to offset slight drops in orders for textiles.

February production, while not as large as that of the same month of 1929, was larger than that of January. Commodity stocks were slightly larger than in 1929, but lower than in January.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Interview

MARY MOREY, in the little cubicle that constituted her "office" in the Morning Mercury plant, was just hammering out the last of the feature article for the pre-date edition, when a buzzer informed her that the M. E. would have a bit of conversation with her.

The managing editor, trying to look over the daily circulation report and talk through two telephones at once, made a gesture with his elbow which Mary interpreted as meaning for her to sit down.

She sat down.

The M. E. made a note on the report, got untangled from his telephones and said: "Here's a slip that will take you in to see the Haskell dame."

Mary Morey never batted an eyelash.

One might ask, "Why should she?"

Plenty of reasons why she should have gone white or pink or refused the assignment, chief among them being that Joe Haskell had been murdered — poisoned, that his wife, Pauline, was being held for the crime, and that Mary Morey happened to have been the first wife of Joe Haskell!

Why bother with other reasons?

"Turn on your sob stuff to her, Miss Morey," said the M. E., "get the low-down on the whole thing — make her come across with all the hot-spots in her life from the cradle to now, and get the inside dope on Haskell — brute, and all that stuff."

The managing editor made this request in the same tone of voice he would have used in saying, "Run out and get me a carton of cigarets."

Managing editors are like that.

"O. K., Boss," said Mary Morey, picking up the slip, secured through political pull, that would admit her to the place where Pauline Haskell was being held on a charge of murdering her husband.

An Odd Interview

Mary took a taxi across to her rooms, dressed in a most fetchingly plain dark suit as befitted the occasion, made up nicely and wondered if Joe had ever left any pictures of herself around for wife number two to see. So far as Mary knew, Joe's second wife had never seen her. She hoped she wouldn't recognize her.

On her way over Mary smiled grimly.

What would her managing editor say if he knew the truth?

Here was a big story in itself, "Prominent newspaper woman interviews her former husband's second wife, accused of murdering him!"

Joe Haskell had married a pretty little show girl for his second venture. She wasn't a headliner, just one of the chorus. Mary had seen her picture in the papers, but newspaper pictures are seldom accurate. She wondered what the little fool was like. Mary had decided that the girl was a little fool because no man was worth murdering, and suffering for the crime.

The place where Pauline Haskell was confined was more like a room than a cell, although the barred windows and walls of masonary that paint couldn't hide told the story.

By the window, near a small stand, sat Mrs. Pauline Haskell.

Mary Morey was thinking, as she was admitted to the room, "Good lord, just a kid!"

Pauline glowered at Mary, and thrust out a pretty little chin in rather a defiant way.

"That's right, my dear," said Mary, briskly, "always meet things more than half way, it gets you more. Nobody likes a whimperer. I'm from the Mercury, you know."

Pauline Amazed

Mary drew up a chair and extended her hand.

Pauline didn't offer to shake hands.

"I didn't want to see you—or anybody," Pauline said.

Mary smiled at her.

"Shake—I certainly admire frankness and if I were in your place I would say the same thing."

The girl stared in amazement.

"Would you—really?"

She shook hands rather weakly.

"Tell me about it, like as though I were your older sister," Mary said.

"Never had any sisters."

"Well, let's pretend I'm your older sister and you trust me and know I can help you, so you settle down for a heart-to-heart chat about all you've been through."

"What's the use—it's all over, he's dead now, he can't ever—"

The girl stopped, bit her lip and stared out of the window.

"—can't ever come home drunk and kick you out of bed and laugh to see you double up in pain," Mary Morey finished for her.

Pauline sat up straight and stared widly at Mary.

"God!" she said, "do all men do that?"

"All men like Joe Haskell do, don't they?"

"I don't know—he was the only man I ever had—I was always on the level with him and yet—but I won't talk about it."

"And yet he called you vile names and brought friends home and made you serve refreshments for them and made you go and sleep alone in a back room."

Pauline Haskell stood up and leaned toward Mary Morey.

"Are you a mind-reader? I never told a soul about that in my life—I haven't even told my lawyer—what's the use? I put poison in his drink—I meant to do it—I wanted to kill him and I'm glad I did, and the sooner it is over with the better, without wasting a lot of talk and—"

Pauline Haskell went to the window and stood there.

Mary Morey went up behind her, put her arm about her, turned her around and wiped the tears from the girl's eyes.

"You haven't told anyone that, have you?" she asked, gently.

"I've told you and you'll print it and I'm glad of it—great big black letters—CONFESSION—Oh, I know all about such things. When I was on the stage, just a back-row chorus girl, I used to eat up such stories—thought they were swell—and now I'm one of those stories."

"Well, let's sit down."

Justified

"I had a right to kill him, I tell you—I had a right—the way he—he——"

"Wrecked you, wrecked your sense of decency, wrecked your health."

Pauline sat down, suddenly.

"Are you some relation of his—or some—one of his terrible women come here to get me to confess?"

"No, my dear, I am not one of Joe Haskell's bad women, and I am not now related to him. I came because my newspaper sent me. I had hoped I wouldn't be sent, but Pauline, I'm for you, I'm all for you. Any man who could talk of nothing but vulgarities."

nothing except depravity, who ——"

Mary leaned forward and whispered to Pauline, whispered things quite beyond repeating, much less printing.

Before she had finished, Pauline had reached out and grasped Mary's wrist and held it. When Mary finished, Pauline said:

"I never saw you before. I never saw a picture of you. I know, now, from the way you talk, that you never was one of Joe's bad women, you never was any man's bad woman, so you must have been his first wife!"

His First Wife

"I was his first wife—for more than a year. For 10 months of that time I remained his wife through pride, because so many had told me I was a fool to marry him and I was ashamed to admit they had been right. Then I divorced him — it didn't take me 15 minutes, right here in New York, to get my divorce. I wouldn't take alimony. I didn't want a penny of his dirty money. I was planning to see your lawyer and offer help, but I did not want to intrude on you until I was sent. It's the way I earn my living."

"I knew it—only someone fool enough to be his wife could know all you know about him. I'm glad I confessed to you, Miss Morey, because you can understand that I'm not trying to save myself. You know, as well as I know, and nobody else does know, that I had every reason to kill him. They won't send me to the chair, I know that, because I had provocation. I may get 20 years, my lawyer says, and cut that to 15. That will make me 35 when I get out, but that doesn't matter, I might as well be 65 because I have no more use for men."

"You don't know anything about men, you married a beast, there are plenty of men. We weren't fortunate enough to get one. I'm going to try again, later—but I'm going to be sure this time and not be blinded by a handsome face, a good dresser and moderate riches—that reminds me, you'll inherit Joe's money. He had quite a lot."

"As if I wanted——"

"You'll need it—take it—you earned a million times more than he left, or than any man could leave you, take it."

Mary Helps Pauline

"How are you going to write my confession? Big headlines saying that I confessed to murder?"

"What confession?" Mary Morey asked her.

Pauline stared at her a moment. Mary's expression was one of amused astonishment.

"The confession I just made—about putting poison in my husband's highball and laughing when it killed him!"

"But you made no such confession—you never confessed to killing him, to me or anyone, my dear."

"Nonsense — I couldn't get away with it. How could I? He was dead, poisoned, I mixed his drinks, I hated him. A jury of dumbbells would convict me."

"Listen, my dear, you—never—confessed—to—a—soul."

"But why say that?"

"Because you didn't murder him, it was self-defense!"

Pauline Haskell laughed bitterly.

"He constantly threatened to poison you. He frightened you, you scarcely dared eat or drink for fear he would keep his oft-made threat to poison you. One day you thought you saw him put something into a highball glass. He commanded you to have a drink with him—when you got the chance you switched glasses!"

"Oh!" gasped Pauline.

"It was self-defense, my dear, and you'll never do a day in prison for it—I'll be witness for you. I'll swear that he always threatened to poison me when I was his wife—you'll go free, dear girl!"

Pauline Haskell did go free.

HOME GAMES THAT WHILE AWAY THE LONG EVENINGS

Wharton D. Schnozzola and A. A. Reilly, delicatessen owners and prominent clubmen, have discovered new method of slicing liverwurst. Put liverwurst on washtub, cover with old newspapers or phone books. Station the players at two-foot intervals around tub. Arm all contestants with cleavers, double edged. At a given signal an old rubber is thrown into ring, this being done to enrage the liverwurst—and play begins. The winner may be determined by counting fingers—the player losing fewest digits winning the chukker.

Earth's Most Savage Beast

And a Wonderful Poem.

THE MOST FEROCIOUS OF ANIMALS.

This tiger, captured full grown in Sumatra and taken to the London Zoo, has never been tamed, never lost a particle of his jungle rage and ferocity since the day it first found itself a captive.

The great beast is seen here with ears flattened, as in preparation for a fight.

Animals in fighting hold the ears down, because they are first, and most easily, bitten off.

You may see an angry horse lay its ears flat on its neck when about to bite.

This beast represents a tribe that is first among the animals of the earth in savagery and fighting power.

A tiger will kill a lion bigger and heavier than itself.

The tiger has enormously powerful fore legs and jaws that once shut do not let go.

About such a beast as this William Blake wrote his famous poem, verses that admirably describe the savage might of the tiger, and ask by what super power that striped beast "burning bright" was created.

It is a poem that everybody should know.

THE TIGER

Tiger! Tiger! burning bright,
In the forest of the night,
What immortal hand or eye
Could frame thy fearful symmetry?
In what distant deeps or skies
Burnt the fire of thine eyes?
On what wings dare he aspire?
What the hand dare seize the fire?
And what shoulder, and what art,
Could twist the sinews of thy heart?
And when thy heart began to beat,
What dread hand and what dread feet?
What the hammer? what the chain?
In what furnace was thy brain?
What the anvil? what dread grasp
Dare its deadly terrors clasp?
When the stars threw down their spears,
And watered heavens with their tears,
Did He smile His work to see?
Did He who made the Lamb, make thee?
Tiger! Tiger! burning bright,
In the forest of the night,
What immortal hand or eye
Dare frame thy fearful symmetry?

Legal Evidence Now.

Judge James Gordon, Jr., of Philadelphia, rules that a talking film of a prisoner's confession, obtained under proper circumstances, is legal evidence in Pennsylvania.

"The novelty of the sound picture," Judge Gordon declares, "is no reason for rejecting it. The courts have always been hospitable to the inventions of science, when their accuracy and reliability as aids to the determination of truth are established.

"Photography and the mechanical reproduction of sound being both admissible in evidence, we see no reason for refusing to accept the combination of the two."

Judge Gordon happens to be the first to rule on talkies as evidence, but it will be but a short time before they are recognized by all courts.

Looking at a confession, seeing the play of the prisoner's features, hearing the tone of his voice, will give a jury a truer insight into the truth than any written record could possibly afford.

Too, the talkie is a much-needed safeguard for the rights of the prisoner. It ought to eliminate the third degree, which, rightly or wrongly, is used to force many a confession, and which in public estimation is one of the darkest blots on our system of justice. That alone will commend it to all humane persons, judges included.

The Inglorious Fourth

He's Really Superior.

The dub bridge player, who makes a fourth to be obliging and suffers accordingly, is defended by Dr. Alfred Adler, Viennese psychologist.

The dub is a better man than the shark, says this specialist—and like all specialists, he proceeds to tell you why.

"Most people play cards to waste time," he points out. "Time, if a man is not courageous, is his worst enemy. Bridge is a great invention. A little of it is relaxation. But a lot becomes a mental habit, an attempt to satisfy a striving for superiority. It offers an attempt to conquer others.

"The good bridge player suffers from an inferiority complex and finds that bridge is the easiest way to acquire a momentary superiority."

Many of us who play bridge only when compelled to will be grateful to Dr. Adler. After all, we are the real stuff. We don't need to win a rubber to be convinced of our own excellence. We are just naturally superior.

When set a few hundred points we can now remark nonchalantly:

"Sorry, partner. Their inferiority was too strong for us."

Spring Dilemma

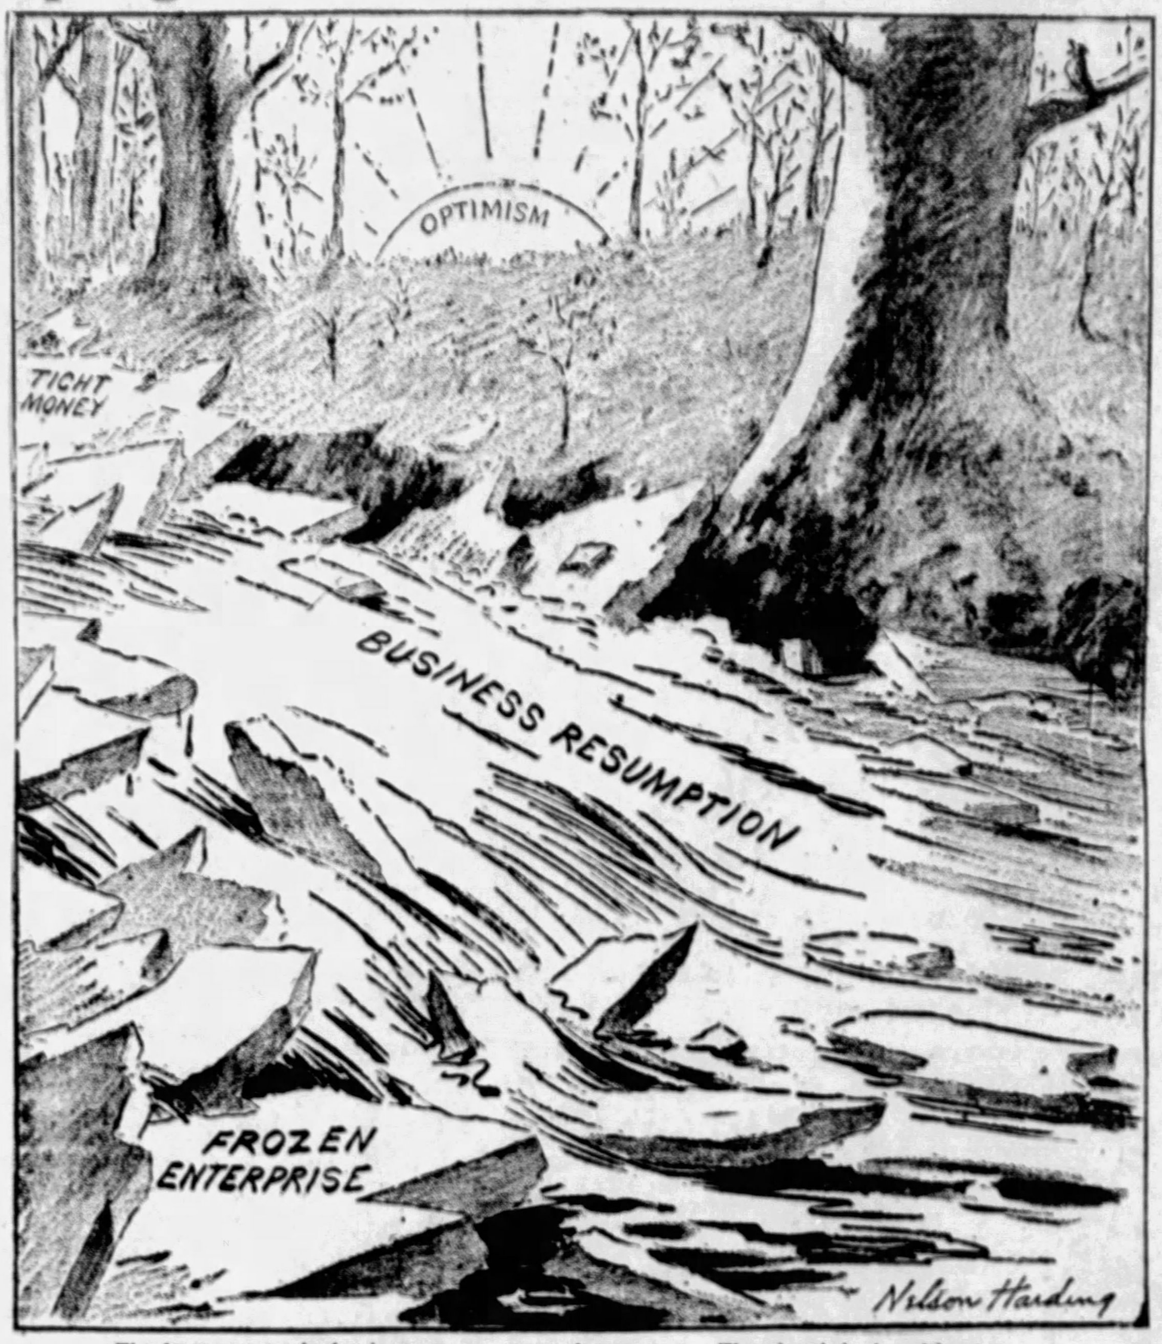
Life a Complicated Ordeal.

A young lady, who left her home in Missouri to go to New York, found life in the Metropolis so depressing that she put on men's clothes and started out to commit suicide. Leaping from a window, she fell into an awning and rolled unhurt to the sidewalk. She then determined to jump into the bay.

While in the subway, a bricklayer observed that she was wearing high-heeled shoes. He started to flirt. The girl became angry and had police arrest the man. She refrained from suicide in order to prosecute him. All of which does rather confirm the contention of the younger skeptics that life is a complicated ordeal.

Spring Thaw

Drawn by Nelson Harding



The frozen stream is thawing out
And underneath a warming sun
The shackled current is released
And once again begins to run,

The winter's ice is melting fast,
The clearing sky's no longer gray
And rapidly will flow the tide
As obstacles are swept away.

There is no doubt that our scholastic tribes are fervently in favor of developing the sinews of the hospitable elbow.

The sturdy college of Yale voted wet, nine to one. The younger generation doesn't want to get any older.

If Yale votes moist and dewy by a ratio of nine to one, we advise the Literary Disgust not to fool with rough, manly colleges like Princeton or Vassar.

The opinion of a university is important after the third year. We wouldn't take a sophomore's opinion. A sophomore is a used freshman and freshmen are not allowed to have opinions.

Too many of our collegiates seem to think a diploma is a reprieve. Only a sophomore could choose for his thesis, "My Country, Wet or Wrong."

EMPLOYMENT PAYS THE PIPER

By Herbert Kaufman

TWENTY-FOUR per cent of 4,478 concerns, reporting to the New York Board of Trade, say that they are hiring more help.

Sixty-four per cent announce that there has been no payroll deflation since February 1st.

Gov. Roosevelt proclaims a nine per cent rise in idleness over the entire state since October 1st.

Breakdowns in the BODY ECONOMIC like derangements in the human system can't be repaired before disturbing conditions are clearly understood: First the FACTS then the DIAGNOSIS, and finally REMEDY. But when surveys are completed and the experts offer their recommendations, we'll find that this country, together with the REST of the world, instead of being FUNCTIONALLY wrong is simply passing through a severe attack of INDIGESTION, production and consumption are out of line. The International Frankenstein has created a new monster called EFFICIENCY. And efficiency has checked waste, cut corners, and economized in men and materials without consulting EQUILIBRIUM.

WHEN Japan suddenly decided to go modern, she immediately ran slap-bang into the problem of providing gainful tasks for the millions of folk displaced by the introduction of machinery, and was COMPELLED to snip cloth accordingly.

Westerners, visiting the islands, were dumbfounded to discover women still cutting grass in municipal parks with five-inch sickles.

Power lawn-mowers would have done the same job at a ninety-five per cent saving, but her infant industries were not YET sufficiently developed, or diversified, to absorb the victims of such competition, so the Mikado's careful statesmen postponed thriftier practice until alternate occupation was established for them.

Progress, yonder, wasn't allowed to take a joy-ride on a steamroller, as in present-day Europe or in some industrial sections of the United States.

CIVILIZATION is momentarily driving a little too precipitiously at its goals. We're mechanizing faster than the community can adjust its philosophies and plans to the bewildering consequences of SO MUCH invention.

High speed tools and automata MUST have right of way. If WE don't build automobiles, puddle iron, stamp steel, sew, hew, haul, till, harvest and distribute as SHREWDLY as the next fellow, their factories and farms and exporters will inherit America's markets and dig the ground from under America's prosperity.

The pace is SET and no country can ABATE it, and survive in the bitter commercial struggle.

The profit and loss account insists upon making the MOST possible goods at the LEAST possible expense. And wherever a robot underbids the contract, enlightened selfishness has no OPTION but to engage its services.

LINOTYPES, pneumatic riveters, steam shovels, farm tractors, electric welders, paint sprayers, together with cog, wheel and steel-finger substitutes for package fillers, label pasters and census tabulators, will lastingly continue to reduce overheads and personnels because they can convince the balance sheet that they don't make human mistakes, require human wages or demand the SPACE and COMFORTS that human beings must have.

But because enterprise, EVERYWHERE, has been pressing efficiently to the LIMIT, without comparing foreign or domestic outputs of copper, grain or ANYTHING ELSE, many industries, which failed to measure the spread between supply and demand, recklessly plunged past the saturation point and created surpluses.

Until consumption THAWS these FROZEN ASSETS operation CAN'T resume peak capacity.

When production PLAYS the GLUTTON, employment must PAY the PIPER.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I'M sorry for the little girls who haven't jobs these days . . . the rich little girls who don't need to work.

I see many of them, going around the country . . . hundreds of them, so alike you can hardly tell one from the other. Delicate, boneless young creatures, with fluttering, tinted hands, wavering knees and the flat, unaccented chatter of sparrows.

That other mob of girls, capable working girls, with alert eyes and brisk gestures—they're the lucky ones. They have the excited, important look of soldiers on the march. They bear the mark of being with men, of working with men. Their lives click with a vivid staccato. They are doing something. They are getting somewhere. They ARE somebody.

The girls who don't work, look at them enviously. Their insolent helplessness becomes mere clumsiness before that air of brisk importance. They, too, want to be important. They feel that they are missing something—something tremendously colorful and exciting.

Suddenly they hate their gilded heels, their sleepy mornings, the increasingly dull monotony of their preening, posing, pattering evenings. They feel tired of compliments, of risque stories, of all the expensive unreality in which they fit, as dolls into a display.

They want to be taken seriously. Nobody takes them seriously. Even their husbands, when at last they marry, will not take them seriously for long. They know a great deal about husbands, these little girls with helpless, tinted hands and bored, shadowed eyes — a cynical great deal. They know that, though most rich husbands give their wives fine establishments, a name and the outward show of love and loyalty, they almost certainly give their comradeship and confidence to some other girl.

Some quick, capable young person who sits at a desk—some cool, competent woman who tabulates and directs their affairs—somebody who is real—somebody who is part of real life.

And what have they, little painted dolls in a gilded show, to offer against competition like that?

The world has turned topsy-turvy. Once it had a place for them. Once the useless, beautiful ladies held the highest places of all. But now the girl who works sits on a throne.

Text For Today But now thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, fear not; for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou art mine.—Isaiah XLIII:1

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THIS went on during much of the Upper Cretaceous period (IV C3), for at least ten million years; and through much of this vast lapse of time the conditions of life on the bottom of the chalk-depositing sea continued so similar that many of the same kinds of animals are found in every layer.

Among the most abundant and the best studied of the chalk fossils are the sea-urchins known as Micraster. These are found and found abundantly, throughout most of the lower half of the chalk.

H. G. Wells

In Southern England, for instance, they persist through 450 to 500 feet of chalk, the total thickness of the deposit varying from nearly 1,300 to nearly 1,500 feet. Translated into time, this means 35 to 40 per cent of the total chalk period, certainly over four million years.

Throughout this long period the fossil Micrasters are so abundant that hundreds of thousands can be collected and a gradual evolution can be traced as we pass upwards.

The changes are apparently trivial. There is a slow alternation of shape from rather flattened to rather arched, and from rather elongated to about as broad as long. The mouth creeps steadily forward, its distance from the front border of the lowest surface decreasing from about nine millimetres in the early types to four or five in the latest, on a total length of fifty to seventy millimeters.

A low ridge, totally absent at first, appears and grows slowly higher along the hinder part of the upper surface. The grooves from which the tube-feet emerge grow longer, and their surface, smooth at first, becomes sculptured.

The mouth gets more and more over-hung by a protruding lip of the hard skeleton; the little knobs on the skeleton become in some regions gradually more prominent. There are other changes, but these are the most obvious.

Opinions differ as to the number of separate species into which Micraster should be divided during this period. Since the series is continuous this question can only receive an arbitrary answer; but it is worth recording that the most conservative estimate is half a dozen.

The changes are infinitesimal both in extent and biological meaning compared with those in the horses. The explanation doubtless lies in the fact that at the beginning of the chalk period the sea urchins were already an old and well-differentiated stock.

Even the earliest Micrasters were highly specialized for life in sand or mud, and there was neither need nor room for any radical improvements.

The mammals, on the other hand, were one and all primitive and small in early Cenozoic times; there was obvious necessity and opportunity for their improvement, and the horses shared in the great evolutionary movement which completely remodeled the whole mammalian stock between Eocene (VA) and Pliocene (VD).

Steadfast as it is, Micraster answers our present purpose, for though the changes involved are small they are absolutely continuous, the urchins found at one level grading quite imperceptibly into those of the rest; a single specimen, indeed, may show characters of one "species" in some of its tube-feet grooves characters of another in the rest.

There is no question but that the Cretaceous sea persisted without any notable change in its conditions throughout the whole time and that our urchins lived, died and reproduced upon its bed in a continuous succession, so that the fossils from the lower layers were actually the parents of those embedded higher up.

Slowly the race modified itself; by almost imperceptible degrees Micraster changed its shape. The evolutionary movement which Micraster demonstrates to us is only small and sluggish, but the demonstration which it gives is complete, with not a chink or loophole in it.

§ 5. "Missing Links."

It would be possible to give a number of other evolutionary series, almost or quite as perfect as those we have described in detail.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 2.—Every unimportant nobody is dashing off a full length autobiography these days. So today's column will be about myself. Take a deep breath and let's go. My first newspaper job was chasing local items up and down the main street of a small town.

I am still doing the same thing in about the same way only my Main street is Broadway, the avenues and side streets. I frequently write protesting letters to editors if they blue pencil my stuff, which is cheeky. For when I see it in print I wonder why they print it at all.

Most of my writing is done at night and for ten years, save to catch a steamer or train, I have not seen the sun rise. I have been writing a daily article about New York for 16 years and only two strike me as worth preserving. One of those was an idea suggested by Michael Arlen.

I have never intentionally written a line I thought would wound the feelings of another, nor have I ever spoken slightingly of a race or a religion. Some of the most sarcastic screeds about me have been written by writers I have befriended.

I have worked on country weeklies, small town dailies, big city papers, two metropolitan journals and several magazines. My smallest weekly income from writing was $1 for a joke sold to Life. My biggest was $4,250 which I never hope to equal again.

My average mail is 100 letters a day. More epistles come from California than any other state. The only city of any size from which I do not ever recall receiving a letter is Baton Rouge, La. The biggest mail from any city comes from Denver, Colo.

Ninety-eight per cent of mail is friendly. The other two per cent is anonymous and sneering. I answer every letter as soon as possible. I do my best work—or so it seems to me—on dark, gloomy and drizzling days. At times I do my stint in a half hour. Other times it takes me all day.

I invariably go to my typewriter bursting with enthusiasm. In 15 minutes I am usually casting about for an excuse to procrastinate. I become totally absorbed in the prospect of a developing hang-nail. I putter with desk drawers. Shine the glass top of my desk. Romp with the dog. Anything to delay. Yet no other work interests me.

* * *

I am a professional worrier. There is not a day that something does not pop up and befog me with depression. I look upon the worst side of everything and yet in great emergencies—real troubles—I am amazingly calm.

* * *

About once a year I am seized with an overwhelming urge to be thrifty. I remove uncanceled stamps from envelopes and resort to other bursts of niggardliness. It lasts about two weeks and then I go on a spending spree that incites polite but firm telephone calls from the bank.

Nearly all my life has been spent in hotels—my father was a hotel keeper. I tried keeping house for two months in Newport, Ky., opposite Cincinnati. Neither my wife or I liked the experiment. We rarely eat at the same restaurant twice in succession. I frequently order three helpings of dessert. I am an extravagant tipper—save to taxicab drivers. I pay my debts promptly chiefly because they are a source of worry unpaid.

* * *

My wife has for ten years attended to all my business affairs. She arranges and dictates all the terms of my contracts. The net income goes to her and I still feel she has been underpaid. The gentlest of women, she is declared by astute executives to be the shrewdest they ever encountered. I have frequently made a fool of myself but she has always been tolerant. And that is why I consider myself an extremely lucky (Deep Bass Chorus: I'll say he's lucky.)

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

WHY be governed by impulses?

Do you have an urge to do many things which are not only unprofitable but a positive detriment to health or reputation?

Our weaknesses make more demands than our beneficial suggestions.

To every thought that leads up, there comes a dozen that lead to the foot.

It is so much easier to carry out the wrong kind of impulses.

Usually they are the sort that make no great demand on mental equipment.

They give fleeting or momentary pleasure.

It is a real struggle to control the impulses that should have no part in our lives.

Too often there is willingness to take chances of the outcome rather than exercise the control needed to overcome them.

Isn't it true that most of the trouble you have experienced has been the result of following some suggestion that you should not have entertained?

You allow your mind to play with thoughts that are disloyal or foolish.

They get you into many regrettable situations; they blemish your character and reputation; they weaken your will power.
